

'FACTSMANSHIP' NEEDED

Liberal Taunts Arouse Bennett

Power, Debt, Ferries Questioned

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane Wednesday fought an hour-long battle of words with Premier Bennett in which he nearly was ejected from the legislature and which completely shattered brotherly love and apathetic debate.

Mr. Macfarlane demonstrated how effectively, more so than any other M.L.A., he can needle the premier, and push the needle under his skin.

He berated the premier (who lives in Oak Bay) on a number of counts:

Purchase of Black Ball ferries; the Peace River project; secret government; debt.

Nearly Ejected

He called him: "a master of double talk"; "a showman; arrogant."

He asked him to show some "factsmanship" for a change.

He nearly got thrown out of the legislature for accusing Education Minister Leslie Peterson of saying "half truths" about debt.

The premier immediately jumped up (he took about 10 such jumps during the speech) to demand the remark be withdrawn.

Speaker Hugh Shantz agreed.

"I will not; I will complete my remarks which will explain it," said Mr. Macfarlane.

Speaker Adamant

Mr. Shantz insisted.

"Under order of the House only," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"He's showing complete disrespect for the Speaker," cried the premier.

"I might as well be muzzled," complained Mr. Macfarlane.

"Mr. Speaker, he's suggesting he's being muzzled," the premier said.

Mr. Shantz got tough.

"The honorable member has come so close to being named in this House," he said. "He has been disrespectful to the chair. I will not tolerate it."

If the Speaker "names" a member he is automatically ejected from the legislature. It hasn't happened since 1955 when the victim was North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, although Mr. Shantz threatened two CCFers last year.

"Weasel," said Premier Bennett.

Tony Gargrave (NDP-CCF Mackenzie) sprang to the defence.

Power Fight In Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — Turkish air and ground force units struggled in Ankara and other Turkish centres tonight over support of Premier Ismet Inonu's coalition government. No casualties were immediately reported as air force units and army ground troops tried to take over control of key centres.

Cease-Fire Order Near

De Gaulle Orders Algeria 'Seal-Off'

All-Out Measures To Avert Blood Bath

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle's government all but sealed off violence-torn Algeria from the outside world today in an all-out effort to prevent a new bloodbath when a cease-fire is proclaimed—probably within 10 days.

Security measures were stepped up both in France and Algeria as the rebel parliament, the National Council of the Algerian Revolution, met in the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

It convened in special session there to ratify or reject a draft cease-fire agreement concluded with the French last weekend. The pact was approved by the French cabinet Wednesday night.

French officials expected the CNRA to ratify the pact and that a cease-fire, ending nearly seven-and-a-half years of bloodshed, would be proclaimed by March 5 at latest.

DESPERATE FIGHT — The French government hastened measures to guard against a mass outbreak of violence between Moslems and Europeans in Algeria or a possible attempt to seize power by the terrorist Secret Army Organization which is fighting desperately to prevent the country coming under Moslem rule.

All flights between France and Algeria today were cancelled. All entry permits for Algeria were declared no longer valid.

Authorities announced that when flights are resumed—probably Friday—all passengers to and from Algeria will be searched and their identities doublechecked by airport security police.

In Algeria itself, equally stern measures were in force. Tanks and armored cars patrolled the main streets of Algiers. Army reinforcements reached the big western port city of Oran, which has been racked by terrorism for the past six weeks.

Troops were held ready to seal off the European and Moslem quarters as a precaution against racial slaughter once the cease-fire is signed.

TRAIN CRASH KILLS 40

BOGOTA (AP)—A head-on collision of passenger and freight trains killed 40 persons today, the Colombian National Railways announced.

About 190 persons were reported injured, including five United States cadets from a training ship of the California Maritime Academy at San Diego.

Invitation Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Premier Einar Gerhardsen of Norway has accepted an invitation from President Kennedy to visit the United States in May, the White House announced Wednesday. The premier will be in the United States as a presidential guest for five days, beginning May 8.

Terrorism Wave

ALGIERS (AP)—A wave of terrorist attacks swept Algiers today as the right-wing Secret Army Organization made a last-ditch effort to wreck an impending French-Algerian agreement to end the 7½-year rebellion.

Blizzard Warning

EDMONTON (CP)—Blizzard warnings were issued for central and southern Alberta today as an intense storm moved rapidly southeastward through the province.

10 Hurt In Fire

MONTREAL (CP)—About ten persons were injured and taken to hospital during a fire that destroyed a two-story apartment block in suburban Montreal East today.

UIC Raises Limits For Pension Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment Insurance Commission regulations have been amended to increase to $20 a week from $14 allowable earnings of dependents, Labor Minister Starr announced today in the Commons.

The change became effective Feb. 1. The increase in the old age pension to $65 from $55 a month, effective the same date, raised income for dependents of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits above the permissible ceiling.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said he hopes this lead will be followed by other cabinet ministers. He referred to the fact that allowable earnings have not been increased for recipients of war veterans' allowances.

UNION BACKING

'Argue Knew' —Fisher

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) said in the Commons today Hazen Argue knew for many months that his travel expenses were being largely paid by three big trade unions but did not object then to their financial support of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Fisher, chairman of the CCF-NDP caucus and the man who nominated Mr. Argue for the leadership of the new party at its founding convention last August, was delivering the first parliamentary rebuttal to Mr. Argue's statements since his defection.

Mr. Argue resigned from the party and its parliamentary leadership Sunday, charging the NDP had come under the domination of a clique of labor union leaders.

Mr. Fisher said he spoke on behalf of three other CCF MPs who had supported Mr. Argue in his unsuccessful fight with former Saskatchewan premier, T. C. Douglas for the NDP national leadership.

RESPECT RIGHT — He said they and the other CCF-NDP members of the Commons take no issue with Mr. Argue's democratic right to switch his political allegiance.

But he said Mr. Argue had continued to work in the NDP until he resigned the parliamentary leadership in a "cool, deliberate and malignant way."

Speaker Roland Michener ordered him to withdraw references to malignancy, and he did.

Mr. Fisher also said that from the beginning of last year until the new party founding convention, which opened July 31, Mr. Argue's travel expenses had amounted to about $5,000.

"That figure is completely inaccurate and false," said Mr. Argue, jumping up from his new seat in the Commons between the Liberal and Conservative benches.

"I have seen the figure," said Mr. Fisher.

CAME FROM UNIONS

Mr. Fisher said the money to pay Mr. Argue's travel expenses had come from the party, and it came "largely from the trade union."

He named the United Automobile Workers, the United Steel Workers, and the United Packinghouse Workers.

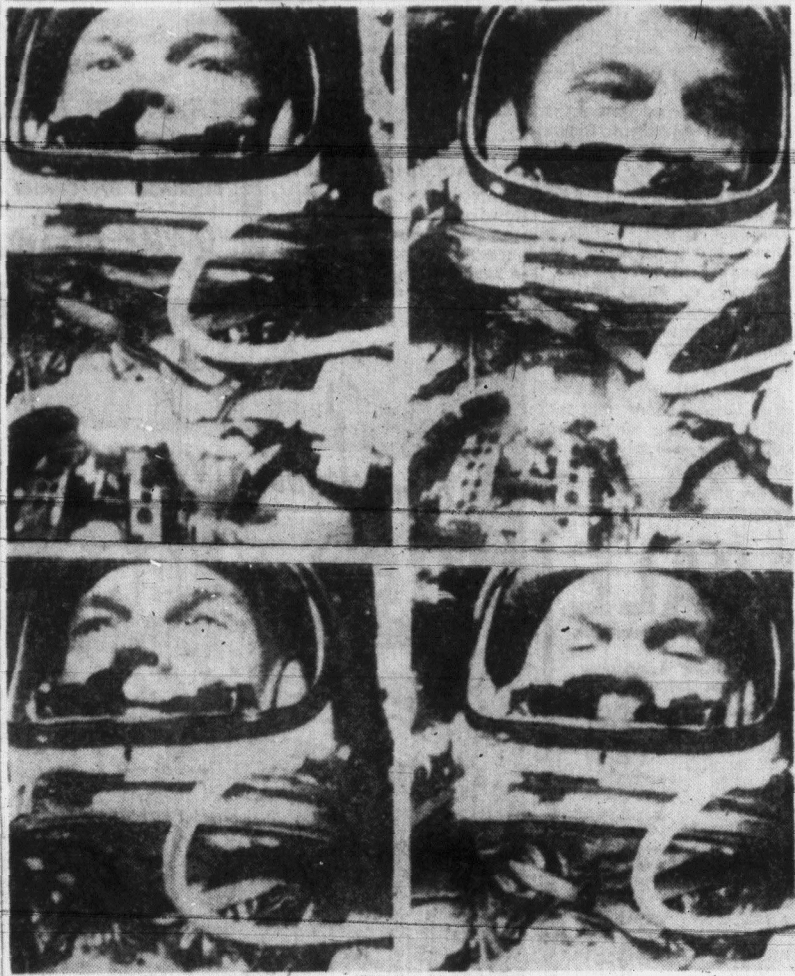

'INVADERS TRAINING IN PANAMA'

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today the United States is training Cuban invasion forces in jungle camps in the Panama Canal Zone.

It was one of the most specifically documented of the Fidel Castro regime's long string of claims that a new invasion is in the making. Almost a year has passed since the unsuccessful invasion of last April 17.

The radio said other training camps are located in a Panamanian province on the Pacific coast, identified as Los Santos, and claimed a submarine base is in the same area.

Wheat Price Hiked — OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today a ten-cent-a-bushel increase in the initial price paid to Western farmers for wheat, bringing it to $1.50 a bushel for No. 1 northern basis Fort William.

WITHOUT CONTROLS

Russia Seeks Pledge Against Atom Tests

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union said today it is willing to discuss the nuclear test-ban issue in the forthcoming 18-nation disarmament talks—but only on the basis of a previously rejected proposal.

Soviet negotiator Semyon Tsarapkin made the announcement in an informal meeting with the United States deputy delegate, David Mark, and Britain's Derek Brinson.

He said the Soviet government continues to stand on its Nov. 28 proposal for a big power test-ban pledge which allows no international control.

That proposal was formally rejected by the Western side before the nuclear talks were broken off last month. At that time Britain and the United States said in view of the adamant Soviet refusal to allow international test-ban controls the talks should recess immediately until a new common basis is found.

The result has been a number of demonstrations by school children, which have been curbed by police. Police have been stoned by the children on several occasions.

In today's demonstration the youngsters got to the minister's office and police arrived in riot wagons with dogs. Officers told the children some of them could go into the building to see the minister but they refused to split up.

Officers then ordered them to disperse and they began to move away. A police spokesman said later one child was arrested for obstructing the police.

SOFT-HEARTED LANDLORD FIRED

'He Did Everything He Could ...'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The 25-year-old mother of five children sat in her shabby-furnished apartment in the low-rent development today and commented:

"If it hadn't been for Mr. Steingrubby a lot of people would have been set out."

Burt Steingrubby was manager of the housing project until Wednesday. He was forced out of his job because he dug up the difference between tenants' hard-earned money and the full amount of the rent. He was suspended two weeks ago.

Both Negroes and whites live in the housing area. About 75 per cent of the tenants—708 families—are Negroes.

"He did everything he could to help the people. He used a lot of his own money to pay rent for them. Some people in this building owe him money right now. They would have been evicted if not for him."

"Ever since they let him go they've been moving people out."

"I have no regrets," said Steingrubby. "I would do the same thing all over again."

Steingrubby, 43, father of five, resigned when the St. Louis Housing Authority gave him the option of quitting or being fired.

Charles Farris, director of the authority, said Steingrubby violated agency policy by accepting part payments on rent and by keeping his own books. No money was missing.

Steingrubby explained "Some families came to me with a partial payment, and I used my own money to make up the balance of their rent."

But, he said, the alternative to helping the tenants was eviction. "There's no point in moving these families into the project to help them and then throw them out in the street again."

Steingrubby now has a job as a foreman in a small plant, earning about half his salary as project manager.

Steingrubby said he never charged interest.

"I never lost a penny. I don't consider it as money lost. It's charity helping these people. I made $600 a month, that's more than I needed."

Steingrubby admitted that during his four years as manager of several housing projects he had not been repaid about $1,000.

But, he said, the alternative to helping the tenants was eviction. "There's no point in moving these families into the project to help them and then throw them out in the street again."

After seven and a half years of fighting they might as well declare war in Algiers an' have it.

That submarine wuz prob'ly left over from th' submarine races o' th' silent centennial.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

(Times News Services)

LONDON—The Manchester Guardian today drew the line against the latest "Canavalese" corruption of the English language—the use of the word "go".

The paper was referring to Lt. Col. John Glenn's statement, "I am go; all systems are go," before he was shot into space Tuesday from Cape Canaveral, Fla., for his history-making spin around the world.

The Guardian quoted a civil servant who confessed himself a "chauvinist" about his mother tongue in declaring that Glenn's "phrase makes his flesh creep."

This chauvinist, the paper said, "wants to know if there is any need to misuse an innocent verb when we already have a perfectly good adjective that is brief, clear, and audible."

"Couldn't Col. Glenn just say he was okay?" the civil servant asked.

SYDNEY, Australia — Kerry John Corcoran, 25, won the equivalent of $224,000 in a state government lottery drawn Feb. 6. Today he was charged in central police court with stealing $1,568, May 10, 1961, from a bank where he worked as a clerk. Corcoran was bound over in $2,240 bail for trial later.

VENLO — The first Dutch victim of the twist rage was reported here Wednesday—a 77-year-old grandfather. He boasted he could match his grandchildren in dancing the twist and collapsed on the floor. His dance partner, one of his granddaughters, called a doctor who diagnosed spine lesion. He prescribed complete rest "and no more twist for the rest of your life."

LONDON — A squawk has gone up in Fleet Street that Lord Snowdon is scooping other news photographers because of his royal connections.

Princess Margaret's husband, now working for The Sunday Times, is getting privileged treatment over competing lensmen. The Daily Mirror complains.

It says Snowdon was allowed a solo session with his camera at a Covent Garden rehearsal before other photographers were allowed in.

The pictures he took then were published in The Sunday Times this week. They showed Margot Fonteyn and Rudolph Nureyev rehearsing for Wednesday night's performance of Giselle.

Says The Mirror: "If the facts are what they seem — and if they are not The Mirror will be happy to publish a correction—there is a curious new dodge in this country."

BALTIMORE — Varsity letters will be awarded scholastic leaders as well as athletes at the new Archbishop Curley Road High School. The principal of the school, Very Rev. Aloysius B. Balcerak, said: "I see no reason why the scholar should not receive the same or better prestige symbol as that given the athlete. We want to be proud of our brains — and our halfbacks."

fence. He said Mr. Shantz should order the word withdrawn by the premier.

"If the premier called the member a weasel he'd have to withdraw," said Mr. Shantz. "My understanding was he was not saying it directly. He said he was weaseling."

Laughter Drawn

Mr. Garrahan said that Mr. Macfarlane shouldn't have had to withdraw anyway, because the speaker had earlier ruled such clashes were only one member's word against another.

"That's not true," said Mr. Shantz angrily.

This drew bursts of laughter, because those were almost the same words he had forced Mr. Macfarlane to withdraw.

Mr. Macfarlane returned to debt. He said he recognized the method of financing by provincial guarantees but they were still debt for which the province is responsible and the public should know this.

They had gone from $28,000,000 in 1954 to $1,266,000,000 today.

"They'll be higher next year," boasted the premier.

"Let the people of B.C. remember that remark," warned Mr. Macfarlane.

"They'll have more jobs," retorted the premier.

Face Liabilities

"Before we make any more major expenditures," said Mr. Macfarlane, "we must face the facts about the liabilities we have."

There had been adverse opinions around the world on B.C.'s credit position after the B.C. Electric takeover.

"And you pay no attention — you're too big for that."

"The people want the facts. Mr. Premier, not fantasy. They want facts, not showmanship."

They wanted facts about the Peace River project, too, before $800,000,000 was spent.

"Surely we're not here to play blind man's bluff?"

"We get nothing but showmanship and doubletalk and arrogance."

He challenged the premier to show markets for his Peace River power.

"Were you ever in the Peace River country?" asked the premier.

"Is there a market?" replied Mr. Macfarlane.

"Were you ever there?" said the premier.

This exchange ran on through several repetitions like a child's "tis-tisn't" argument.

"We plead with you on behalf of the people of B.C. to give us the facts," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"You couldn't understand them," said the premier grumpily, turning his back.

Mr. Macfarlane turned to the Columbia River power project and the Ottawa-B.C. impasse over a go-ahead.

He accused the premier of wrecking the whole deal by writing his objections to the prime minister at the very last moment before the treaty with the U.S. was signed more than a year ago.

"In a letter written secretly and furtively to Ottawa, he scuppered the whole agreement and since that time we've had nothing but confusion."

B.C. and Ottawa hadn't had official talks on the subject since last March. Meanwhile the premier had only "sharpened his own political knife" by going ahead with Peace River plans.

All B.C. Hoping

"My hope — and I think the desire of all British Columbians — is to see this hopeless tangle will be unravelled and this great project will go ahead as soon as possible."

"This will require statesmanship of the highest order — not showmanship from our premier."

"The next few months will tell."

Mr. Macfarlane said that the government should never have bought Black Ball ferries without having an independent appraisal of their value.

"Why didn't you?" he demanded of the premier.

"This is not the time to make statements, the member is making a speech," said Mr. Bennett.

"The premier is a master at doubletalk. He can evade an issue faster than anyone else I know," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"Are you against it?" asked the premier.

"I wonder whether it was a good idea," replied Mr. Macfarlane. "I wonder how far this government is going to take over private business."

Mr. Macfarlane said the legislature was never consulted about the deal. It had never been consulted about creation of the B.C. Energy Board. It had never been consulted about a host of cabinet orders passed during the year.

"This sort of thing indicates one thing only — a government by clique — government by a favored few who by chance share the confidence of the

Woman Surrenders, Admits to Bigamy

A city woman, who went through a form of marriage in 1958 although she had already been married for four years, pleaded guilty in city police court Wednesday to committing bigamy.

Police said Evelyn Ada Guiney, Work Street, walked into the police station recently and said she "wanted to straighten out the matter."

They said that although her first husband was still alive and no divorce proceedings had been started, she went through a marriage ceremony at the Legislative Buildings with one Ewart Jarvis Evans in May, 1958.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded the woman to Feb. 28 for probation report and sentence.

HAIL, SNOW IN HAWAII

HONOLULU (AP)—Residents of this exotic land of balmy breezes shivered as northwest winds drove the sea-level temperature early Wednesday to a record low of 55.

Hailstones pelted two areas of Oahu Island Tuesday. On Maui, 10,000-foot Mount Haleakala was lashed by sleet and snow. The temperature there dropped to 25.

HOUSE KILLS JFK PLAN FOR NEW DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's plan to create a new department of urban affairs and put a Negro in the cabinet as its head was killed in the House by a 246-to-150 margin Wednesday.

Kennedy, at his press conference, expressed regret and predicted an urban affairs agency eventually would be created.

In the voting 111 Democrats, mostly southerners, joined 133 Republicans to veto the plan. Only 13 Republicans and 137 Democrats voted for it.

The president had announced earlier he intended to name Robert Weaver, a Negro, to head the new department. Weaver heads the housing and home finance agency.

PGE Sale Question Leaves Bennett Mum

Premier Bennett Wednesday refused to comment on reports that the government is willing to sell the PGE Railway to the CNR.

He told the legislature last week that president Donald Gordon of the CNR had asked if the PGE was for sale.

He met Mr. Gordon here last week.

Reports of the meeting in Ottawa prompted a question in the House of Commons.

But W. C. Budd, the premier's executive assistant, said the meetings were for discussion only of "general" railway issues.

Mr. Bennett also pooh-poohed an Ottawa report that B.C. had been paid a 40 per cent subsidy for two new toll authority ferries.

This came, from Esquimalt.

Saanich MP George Chatterton.

"It is absolutely false," said Mr. Bennett.

He said he had asked for the subsidy but had not received a cent so far.

No Jaycee Grant For Victoria Day

Junior Chamber of Commerce, rejecting a city council appeal, dealt a heavy blow this week to hopes for a substantially expanded Victoria Day celebration in centennial year.

The Jaycees, promoting a fair and carnival for the full week and the Saturday of the Victoria Day weekend, have refused to make a compensatory grant to Greater Victoria Day Celebrations Association.

The association has argued that it suffers financial loss because the Jaycees operate right into the weekend celebration and took over the carnival that formerly provided the association with revenue.

Council, agreeing to close Blanshard Street in front of Memorial Arena for the Jaycee carnival, asked that serious consideration be given to compensating the association with a substantial grant.

But the Jaycees recently informed the association that none would be forthcoming. Reason given was that a large grant was planned for Victoria College.

Association president Joseph Wright said he will ask the centennial committee to provide a grant to fill the gap so that better prizes could be put up in order to attract more and bigger floats than usual for the May 24 parade.

Help Your Child Succeed in School

By LESLIE J. NASON, D.E.
University of Southern California

Sometimes a child makes a wrong turn on the spiral to success and is sidetracked onto the path of failure.

Perhaps it started with one misunderstood idea, then another, then a failure, and eventually, a succession of failures.

Sometimes neither parents nor teachers realize what is happening until the pattern of failure has gone on for years. The child has been able to cover up with good ability with words, an excellent memory or a fine personality. Thus his start on the downward track may not show up on early report cards.

Finally Out of Step

When the situation is finally discovered, the child is out of step.

Schools are organized to help successful children carry on their work. Their facilities are inadequate and teachers lack time to help individuals back on the track. Some teachers take the necessary time and salvage many students but this is not their main job.

Parents, of course, care desperately about their children. They want to know how to help them. The desire of the child to try and the sympathetic encouragement of the parents are primary needs.

A sixth grade lad of my acquaintance caught the spiral of failure in arithmetic. He was stumped by the problems. He was losing interest in school.

His mother encouraged him to think out his arithmetic problems in words. She encouraged him to write all steps of problems on his paper. At her request, the boy tried writing his figures more clearly and putting his work in better order. As his papers improved, his mother showed approval.

Then she discussed the idea of speed with him. His interest picked up. He tried working faster and his mind stopped wandering. He did his work faster and more accurately.

The mother realized she had succeeded one day when the boy burst out of his room: "I finished my homework in 20 minutes. It used to take me 45. And all the answers are right!"

The principles this mother taught her boy, which brought him back on the path to success, are the same whether a student works problems in arithmetic, trigonometry, calculus, chemistry or physics.

If these habits are acquired in arithmetic, the other subjects seem much easier. A college girl of my acquaintance came home discouraged. It took her too long to get supplemental reading done, she explained, and she was losing sleep.

Her father checked her reading speed. It was 250 words per minute. He arranged for help in reading. Improvement was rapid. Her reading speed became four times as fast. She went back to college with a new outlook.

Parents should be watchful. Students do not recognize their own lack of skill.

Next, Give your child new centres of interest.

'Back-Up' Saves Life Of Skindiver

(Times News Services)

GRAND TURK ISLAND, Bahamas — Back-up astronaut Scott Carpenter was back-up man on a skin-diving expedition Wednesday, and wound up saving another diver's life.

Carpenter was swimming with two skin divers who live on the island. One had dived to see how deep he could go without a supply of air.

Carpenter accompanied him down and said the man apparently became unconscious at the 80-foot depth, on his way up from 110 feet. Carpenter could not succeed in giving him his mouthpiece for aid and pulled him to the surface, where fellow astronaut John Glenn, sitting in a boat, helped pull the man aboard.

Glenn was taking time out from physical examinations and giving details of his orbital flight to space administration officials.

Carpenter was stand-in pilot for Glenn's orbital flight Tuesday.

Joint Space Call Backed By Kennedy

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States is prepared to cooperate with Russia in joint peaceful exploration of outer space, but President Kennedy advises against hasty conclusions that such co-operation will come quickly.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev expressed a desire for pooling of Soviet-American space efforts, but Kennedy observed Wednesday that when it comes to negotiations with Russia, it is easier to talk than to reach firm agreements.

He told at a press conference he was willing to discuss joint efforts either bilaterally or through the United Nations.

He also remarked: "I think it is particularly important now, before space becomes devoted to the use of war," to have agreement on the peaceful use of space.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada previously had proposed before the United Nations General Assembly that an international organization be set up to ensure that outer space is used for peaceful purposes.

He told the Commons in Ottawa Wednesday he hoped that a rule of international law that would apply to all nations could be achieved in space "before it is too late."

REPLIES TO K.

The White House made public a direct reply to Khrushchev. In it Kennedy expressed hope that at a very early date our representatives may meet to discuss our ideas and yours in a spirit of practical co-operation.

He added the United States would come up with "new and concrete proposals" for joint enterprises that could be undertaken without delay.

Kennedy flies to Cape Canaveral, Fla., today to offer his personal congratulations to John H. Glenn who encircled the earth in a triple orbit Monday. The president will also welcome the marine hero at a big national celebration here Monday.

He also said a preliminary investigation of U-2 spy pilot Francis Gary Powers indicates he did not breach his flight contract. This would mean there would be no charges against him and that he likely will receive his $52,000 back pay.

Powers was hired by the Central Intelligence Agency on a $30,000-a-year flight mission over Russia that failed and sent him behind Soviet prison bars for 21 months. Some U.S. congressmen have suggested he should have killed himself rather than fall into Russian hands.

He had this to say on other subjects:

Corridors — Any interference with Western rights of air or land transport over East Germany into West Berlin would carry "hazards which none of us should welcome if we look to the possible end of the road."

Berlin — If there are indications that bringing foreign ministers together on the Berlin crisis would produce results, "then I think we ought to do it."

Promenade — Concerts began in Paris in 1833 and were transferred to London in 1838.

Deeper in the Hole

ON THE BASIS OF THE PRESENT situation and anticipated trends, it is not unreasonable to expect that the current flows of revenue and expenditure will be approaching balance by the end of 1962.

This from Mr. Fleming last June. Now we have from him what The Toronto Globe and Mail, a generally Conservative newspaper, calls a "rather forlorn attempt" to convince the public that he is cutting down expenditures according to plan. On the contrary, as The Globe and Mail says, he is increasing them and heading into the latest of his perpetual deficits. The assurances of 1961 appear to be about as reliable as the guarantee of a balanced budget in 1960.

The facts of the expenditure estimates tabled in Parliament a few days ago have been widely misunderstood, thanks to Mr. Fleming, but are really quite simple.

In the fiscal year beginning April 1, Mr. Fleming proposes to spend $7,020 millions as against all the expenditure approved to date for the current fiscal year of $7,080 millions. This appears at first sight to be a reduction, but it is not.

In the first place, next year's program takes no account of the fact that Mr. Fleming has saved about $271 millions by scrapping the old federal-provincial tax agreement and reducing his payments to the provinces. But since the provinces will now collect this money for themselves the taxpayer saves nothing and Mr. Fleming's own revenues are reduced by the same amount. The federal government's position is not improved.

Secondly, the estimates for the next year will be vastly increased before it is over by supplementary estimates, as happens every year. If the supplementaries are increased by the six-year average of $294 millions, and if the loss of revenues to the provinces is taken into account then, as The Globe and Mail says, "the effective additional burden on the treasury would be at least $500 millions more than in the current year."

In short, the federal government is increasing its real costs by about half a billion dollars. How can it find this extra money?

For the current year Mr. Fleming expected a deficit of $630 millions but the figure probably will be nearer $800 millions (plus capital costs all supported by the taxpayers). Next year's deficit would be far higher, indeed unthinkable, if the government could not find more money.

According to Mr. Davie Fulton, the government will find a great deal of extra money through a growth in the Gross National Product and hence of revenue yields from existing tax rates.

Mr. Fulton estimates that the G.N.P. will rise by about 7 per cent or more than $3 billions in one year, an almost incredible rise. If that happened the government would take, in taxes, about 17 per cent of the increase. A growth of $3 billions would give the government extra revenues of $500 millions.

That would be just about enough to cover the extra costs of the next budget. As The Globe and Mail says, the treasury would be in no worse financial shape than it is at present but it would also be no closer to the goal of a balanced budget which has so long eluded Mr. Fleming.

In all probability, however, the government will be in worse financial shape than it is at present because the G.N.P. is unlikely to reach Mr. Fulton's estimate. Even if it does, the government has undertaken vast expenditures not yet admitted in its estimates. Under these circumstances it is no wonder that the government is reluctant to introduce a budget and admit the facts before an election, when Mr. Fleming promised a balanced budget two years ago, boasted that it had been achieved and declared it to be absolutely essential. The disorder of the treasury having steadily worsened since then, what can he say now?

Slide Away From Free Camping

THE DAYS OF FREE CAMPING in provincial campsites are numbered.

Mr. Earle Westwood, minister of recreation and conservation, does not bluntly announce this radical change in policy. His statement to the legislature, however, leave no doubt on the matter.

The minister says that a charge will be made against all campers who remain longer than a specified period—as yet unstated—in any campsite where there is an attendant. This is an expansion of the experiment conducted last year when a $2-a-day penalty was assessed against so-called camp-hogs who remained at one site in any of four provincial parks for more than two consecutive days. The charge for 1962, Mr. Westwood indicated, would be less severe.

The camp-hog has become a convenient whipping boy for what appears to be a drive by the government to make British Columbia camp users pay for camping on sites they have already financed through their taxes.

The minister says, however, that if campers move around enough, avoid staying in one site too long, they will be able to escape any charge. How frequently they have to move will not be known until the free camp period is announced. This departure could convert holidays under canvas into vacations on a pogo-stick.

Thousands of British Columbians who have enjoyed use of the campsites in previous years will see in the announcement the beginning of the end of free camping in the areas developed by the department. The slide has started and the slope is slippery. What will the regulations be next year? How long will it be before the government sets a fee immediately applicable to everyone using any of the sites?

Since 80 per cent of the campers using the facilities in the different parks are British Columbians, they will be charged twice over—once to build and maintain the sites, again for occupying them.

Two developments can be expected. Some campers will merely pass up the parks and set up their tents in the wilderness, with the attendant dangers of fire in uncontrolled regions. Others, using the campsites, will start asking for more facilities than those which are adequate as long as they are free.

A Call for Action

FIFTY PER CENT OF ALL deaths in Canada each year are attributed to heart disease. That is three times as many as from cancer; six times as many as from accidents. The Canadian Heart Fund was organized to try to meet this situation by financing research, prevention and education.

This year the fund seeks to raise more than one and a third million dollars through public contributions. Another quarter of a million will come from other sources. It is little enough to fight such an enemy, for an estimated 1,400,000 Canadians are afflicted, of whom 75,000 are children.

But Kids Don't Stay Still

PARENTS WHOSE CHILDREN have grown up will look with sympathy on a joint move by government, consumers, retailers and manufacturers to introduce Canadian standard sizes in garments for the young.

The same older parents will shake their heads a little skeptically. Children, they know, don't stay

The money will be used—and has been used in previous years—to perfect methods of diagnosis and research, improve surgical techniques and methods, develop helpful drugs, and add to the ever-growing total of knowledge about this age-old problem.

Attainment of the objective will require the help of every Canadian who is able to give. A donation to the heart campaign, which will be continued through this month, may well be a contribution to the health and life of yourself or your family. Here is an appeal that needs no argument in its favor—just action.

Still, standardization of sizes will have some advantages. Once fixed, a mother will know which number to ask for with a reasonable certainty that it will be two sizes too large when purchased, and only a size or two too small when it is discarded because of wear.

Canada, the U.S. and Cuba

IN the highest reaches of the Kennedy administration there is a sensitive and prudent respect for Canadian opinion on the Cuban problem. There is no wish to challenge Canada's right to an independent opinion, no desire to start a campaign to bring Canada into harmony with the Organization of American States which has unanimously ruled that Castro's Cuba is incompatible with the security of this hemisphere. Even a casual criticism by a minor American official is magnified into a bitter indictment of Canadian policy by some sections of the Canadian press. In some instances, statements by Americans without political influence of any kind have been placed on the front pages of Canadian papers as if these men were speaking for the Kennedy administration.

Since it is possible for even an important official to blunder into an indiscretion, it is worth while to define the considered policy of the administration in some detail. To begin with, the ill-starred interview with Mr. Arthur Schlesinger Jr., while in Canada, should be seen in perspective and without any meditated malice.

Mr. Schlesinger, a presidential assistant who bears special responsibilities for "Latin American affairs," never intended, at any point in this interview, to pass a hostile judgment on Canadian policy or to intrude on the internal Canadian scene on Cuba.

Guarded References

His references to Canada, reluctant and guarded, were virtually extorted from him by persistent questioning. The published interview did grievous injury to Mr. Schlesinger's views by presenting them with stark emphasis that omitted all the qualifications present in Mr. Schlesinger's mind.

It is therefore doubly unfortunate that Mr. Howard Green, Canada's minister of external affairs, should have made this interview the occasion for a public complaint against Mr. Schlesinger and by implication a general criticism of American policy.

The official attitude of the Kennedy administration to Canada, in the context of the Cuban problem, can be stated with authority and without obscurity.

The administration is ready to acknowledge with gratitude that none of Canada's trade with Cuba has brought the Castro government the goods and supplies which it most urgently needs. There has been no trade at all in strategic supplies and military equipment. Canada's trade has the advantage of draining off Cuba's limited dollar reserves, thus making it harder for the Castro regime to finance its illicit trade in strategic materials.

This illicit trade with various countries is causing more concern to the United States than anything done in the public trade with Canada. The United States recognizes that other governments may have ample reasons for refusing to follow the example of the U.S. in imposing a harsh boycott on Cuban trade. But it also knows that most free governments are reluctant to provide Cuba with the strategic goods which will supplement the equipment and arms already received by Castro from the Communist empire.

Disturbing Evidence

Yet disturbing evidence proves that important supplies of military value to Cuba are steadily reaching the Castro government outside the range of normal and legitimate commerce. To check this illicit trade is no interference with the internal affairs of any country. In the judgment of the Kennedy administration, this vigilance against economic brigandage should be the common concern of the NATO community.

Indeed, the administration would like the NATO countries to consider whether they should associate themselves with the Organization of American States in declaring the present Cuban government a threat to the security of this hemisphere. The administration believes that the Castro regime can be brought to the ground by a policy which combines diplomatic quarantine with economic and political reprisals.

Quite plainly the downfall of Castro will be hastened if the states joining in these reprisals steadily increase in power and importance. The co-operation of the other NATO members might impose the decisive strain on the Castro regime. But this co-operation must be a voluntary and independent act, since it would extend the NATO commitment beyond the present treaty obligations.

The United States will therefore engage in no campaign to win the support of the NATO community in isolating and discrediting the Cuban government. It will continue to base its policies on co-operation with the Organization of American States, and will hope that its aims and programs will gradually gain the voluntary support of most members of the NATO community.

Your photo of the buck in Beacon Hill Park, which appeared in Monday's Times was interesting but somewhat misleading.

Might I suggest that your photographer return to the park for a second look at the buck, and no doubt he will find to his horror that the "buck" is still wearing his 1961 antlers and will not have his 1962 models for a while yet.

Soon he will be shedding his antlers, and shortly afterwards start growing a new set. About July he will have his new 1962 set, and I feel sure he will be only too pleased to show them in full velvet to your photographer.

Pulp Mill or Tourists?

It was with amazement that I waited for the public's reaction to the building of a new and larger pulp mill, at Crofton, near Duncan—but apparently no one in Victoria has travelled to Port Alberni lately and considered that this could well be Victoria, Duncan and Salt Spring Island in the near future.

It's true that in Port Alberni, you can't open your window, or the smell will drive you out—park your car, unless you put a plastic sheet over it, or do the family wash, unless it's dried in the house.

How many of us have vacationed in Port Alberni? How many auto-courts, and other businesses, which depend on the tourists, will suffer before regulations are enforced to stop the mills from polluting the air? Supply the Chamber of Commerce, publicity bureau, city council and all those interested in Victoria, and the surrounding areas should look into the matter now, before this new mill announces itself with the smell of prosperity. Or will it be the odor of a decaying tourist business in Victoria?

Cause and Effect

It is reported that the dairy industry claims the doctors have destroyed the milk market with threats of cancer from fall-out and their dietary fads, resulting in millions of gallons surplus. Consumption has been cut by fear and the slimline slogans, while butter stocks build up to beat the band.

Now the latest reversal (a swing of the pendulum from the medical front) is that eating fat destroys the extra fat you carry on your body; that fats are good for you and that you should copy the Eskimos and consume all you can. (Dr. Herman Taller.)

So it seems, this crazy world is not confined, in its lunacy, to atomic threats but that people in high places are contradictory and many are manifestly mad. Heart disease is said to account for 50 per cent of the mortality rate. Looking back in medical history, could it be that today the root of the trouble comes not from what we eat but from our daily breathing of carbon-monoxide fumes from cars? Would not an interesting experiment be, for example, the medical check of two controlled groups (a) one living entirely in the country (b) one residing in traffic filled cities (c) those who drive rear-engine cars (compared to those of us who drive front engines) and see who comes off best?

Too elementary, my dear Watson. CLARENCE S. GOODE, FRSA 3190 Ripon Road.

The Farmers Approve

RESIGNATION of Hazen Argue has shaken the New Democratic Party to its foundations. It was not just the fact that this key man had quit. It was the manner of his going.

His declaration that the New Democratic Party had become the tool of a small labor clique and was effectively under the clique's domination and control, was a stab in the back as far as Tommy Douglas was concerned. Certainly it is no secret that the same Tommy Douglas, former CCF premier of Saskatchewan, has been fighting a losing battle to try and bring the farmers and the organized labor groups together into a solid phalanx. The squabbling, the disunity, even among the small group at Ottawa, has merely exemplified the lack of cohesion in the new party as a whole across the country.

Mr. Douglas—rated by those who have covered him in western Canada as one of Canada's top notch political campaigners—has failed to get his cross-country drive off the ground.

At one time political pundits had been forecasting that the next election campaign would be a battle of sparkling political speeches between Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and ex-premier T. C. Douglas. But Mr. Douglas' showing to date has been dismal. So far the preliminary skirmishes in the general election have been between Mr. Diefenbaker and Liberal leader L. B. Pearson.

Members of the New Democratic Party have been looking to the west for much of their strength, come the next election. The recent Ontario by-elections demonstrated that they did not have the support they had hoped for from organized labor.

Hazen Argue as leader of the CCF succeeding M. J. Coldwell and later as house leader of the CCF-NDP group in the Commons, had established a reputation as a fighter for the western farmers. They looked to him to espouse their cause on the floor of the House, as the only man in the opposition groups from the prairies.

Government members of parliament from the prairies are notoriously silent, apparently being content to raise their voices for the farmers in criticism of certain agricultural policies, only behind the closed doors of the caucus room.

Before Mr. Argue made his decision he had thoroughly canvassed his riding. He learned that there were many farmers who were not prepared to support him if he continued as a member of the NDP. The wish was father to the thought when Mr. Douglas declared that he felt the people of Mr. Argue's riding would stay with the new party. Indications are that they will follow Hazen.

Should Mr. Argue decide to align himself with the Liberals—and the indications are that will be his next move—he will swing many votes to that party. There are suggestions that Mr. Douglas might decide to challenge Mr. Argue in Assiniboia and run against him in that federal seat. A good portion of the provincial Weyburn constituency—which Mr. Douglas once represented in the Saskatchewan legislature—is included in the federal Assiniboia seat. What a battle that would make!

But we are not so sure it would be a good move for Mr. Douglas. Mr. Argue appears to be on the way up politically, while Mr. Douglas' star seems to be on the way down. And not to be overlooked is the fact that the Weyburn provincial constituency in the recent by-election returned a Liberal to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Douglas' resignation.

Certainly the New Democratic Party's loss is definitely the Liberals' gain in Saskatchewan. Mr. Argue by his action has lent credence to the charge frequently made by the Liberals that the farmers have no place in the New Democratic Party. Many, tiring of the Conservatives and disillusioned with the CCF turned NDP will throw their votes to the Liberals.

Paying for the UN

WHILE Congress is considering the President's request for authority to buy half of the proposed $200 million issue of United Nations bonds, we must ask ourselves what precisely is the crucial question. It is not whether the Nations is to survive. That is a misleading over-dramatization. The critical question is whether the UN Nations can and should continue to enforce peace, as it has been doing since 1956, on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier, since 1960 in the Congo.

The deficit, which the proposed bond issue is to cover, has nothing to do with the regular operations of the United Nations. The deficit arises wholly from these two highly controversial peace-keeping operations.

On the regular assessments for the regular budget the record is very nearly perfect. For the four years 1956-1959 inclusive, the collection was virtually 100 per cent. For the 1960 assessments, those for the year when the great number of new states were admitted—the collections by the end of 1961 were already 94.6 per cent. Countries in arrears do not lose their General Assembly vote until the amount owed is equal to the contributions due for the preceding two years.

On the 1961 assessments, nearly 86 per cent has already been collected. Of what has not been collected, China owes over half and the rest is owed chiefly by smaller Latin American countries.

Financially Sound

All of this goes to prove that the normal and conventional activities of the UN are financially sound and that they have the support of the whole membership—West, East, and neutral.

The deficit is caused by the two special operations. One, known as U.N.E.F., consists of about 5,000 troops under UN command, the troops being drawn from seven countries, none of them a "great power." These troops keep the peace along about 140 miles of the Israeli-United Arab Republic border. This operation costs about $20 million a year.

The other special operation deals with the Congo and is known as O.N.U.C. Its average cost since July, 1960, has been about $10 million a month. As of January of this year 21 countries had contributed to the operation with a total of about 16,000 soldiers. None of the soldiers came from any of the great powers, so that the U.S.S.R., the U.S.A., the United Kingdom, and France have no fighting men in the Congo.

The deficit is not due to the fact that these two operations are very expensive. They have been financed by special assessments, and various countries have refused to pay because they disagree with the purpose or the conduct of the special operations.

Because the peace-keeping costs are not part of the regular budget, the non-paying nations can escape the penalty of losing their UN vote.

The Soviet bloc and most of the Arab states have refused to pay either for the Middle East or for the Congo, France, Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Spain, and South Africa have refused to pay for the Congo. There are a few others who have not paid, probably because their governments are bankrupt.

Reluctant Donors

The bulk of the deficit is due to the fact that, for their own reasons, a great many countries dislike the special operations and would like to put an end to them.

The United States has always supported the special operations in the Middle East and the Congo and we have been paying about 40-50 per cent of the cost. This sort of thing cannot and should not go on, not because we cannot afford these trifling sums but because the United Nations should not become dependent on any one great power.

The true significance of the bond issue is that it opens a way out of this quandary. The central fact of the bond issue is that interest and amortization are to be covered by the regular budget if, as is expected, the International Court of Justice approves the plan.

The U.S. share of the peace-keeping costs therefore would decrease to its regular share of the UN budget—32 per cent. And the penalty for refusing to pay the interest and amortization will be the loss of the right to vote in the General Assembly.

Without insisting that every detail of the plan as represented to Congress is perfect, it is clear that the plan, which we conceived and invented, is good for the UN and good for the U.S.A.

It saves the UN from having to abandon the special operations which are playing such a mighty part in keeping the peace in the Middle East and in the heart of Africa. It brings to an end excessive dependence of the UN on the United States, and it brings to an end the unacceptable doctrine that a member can keep its privileges and still refuse to pay its share of operations duly authorized by the constituted authorities of the United Nations.

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said today New Zealand will demand the right to station scientists at strategic points in the Pacific to observe fallout from any nuclear tests in the atmosphere made at Britain's Christmas Island.

He told a press conference that if the United States persuaded Britain that further tests in the atmosphere were needed and Britain agreed to the U.S. using Christmas Island in the Pacific "then I would ask—no, I would demand—that arrangements be made for our scientists to watch the situation."

Britain already has announced the island will be available at U.S. request.

With New Left Gov't

ROME (AP)—Premier Amintore Fanfani's new Italian government—farthest to the left in 15 years—today took office today opening a new era in the country's post-war politics.

Fanfani and a coalition cabinet—backed by Pietro Nenni's Socialists, once allies of the Communists—were sworn in by President Giovanni Gronchi.

Fanfani announced the 24-member cabinet Wednesday night after getting Gronchi's approval of the list of ministers. They include 19 Christian Democrats, three Democratic Socialists and two Republicans.

No seats went to Nenni's Socialists, but the new government has been assured Socialist backing in Parliament.

That development—a deal between the Christian Democrats and the Socialists—marks the biggest turn in Italian politics since 1947. In that year, the late premier Alcide de Gasperi, a Christian Democrat, kicked the Socialists and Communists out of his government.

Many Italians, including Fanfani, feel an entirely new era for Italian democracy can be opened up by winning the socialists over and isolating the Communists.

But many Italians, including leading rightists in Fanfani's own Christian Democrat party, fear the alliance with the Socialists. They say it is a risk and that the Socialists remain tied to communism.

Having Giulio Andreotti remain as defence minister and Antonio Segni as foreign minister will help Fanfani reassure Italy's allies, however, that the country remains pro-Western.

Jobless Minister Proposed

TORONTO (CP)—Liberal Party Leader Lester B. Pearson Wednesday proposed the appointment of a special cabinet minister to deal with the specific problem of unemployment.

He said the minister would work with a national economic advisory council, a body he advocated in a speech here Tuesday night to help private industry through crucial changes in the economy.

In a speech to the Premise Club, Mr. Pearson said a special minister on unemployment was needed to work with the economic advisory council because Canada's present increase in productivity is barely big enough to take care of the increase in the labor force.

Another New Africa Nation

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The UN trusteeship committee approved a program Wednesday night to bring the last UN trust territory in Africa to independence. It is Belgium-administered Ruanda-Urundi.

The vote was 87-0-0 with the 11 abstentions represented by the Soviet bloc and Iraq. Cuba broke away from the Soviet stand for the first time to side with the majority.

The independence date now is tentatively July 1 and the committee and the General Assembly will come back into session here June 1 to decide on the final steps of ending the UN trusteeship agreement with Belgium.

Cuba Seeks To Head Off NATO Action

HAVANA (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Raul Roa has made a collective approach to ambassadors here representing NATO countries to counter reported United States moves to apply economic pressure on Cuba through the Atlantic pact. Western diplomatic sources said today.

Envoys of Britain, Canada, France, West Germany and Belgium were among those invited to the foreign ministry Monday and given by Roa an aide-memoire referring to press reports of the U.S. moves.

The memorandum alleged the United States, in applying an embargo on the tobacco trade between the two countries, was acting contrary to the rulings of the conference of the Organization of American States at Punta del Este, Uruguay last month. The conference expelled Cuba from the councils of the organization.

The memorandum was understood to express a hope for continued good trading relations with the countries concerned.

... REPORTING

OTTAWA—In our politics there is nothing truer than Shakespeare's words about "a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune."

Hazen Argue has calculated the tide of western farm opinion is in flood of opposition to what he describes as domination of the New Democratic Party by the big international unions, the steelworkers, the packinghouse workers, the textile workers and the auto workers.

His calculations may be right or they may be wrong. If right they could bring down the government. If wrong they could destroy Hazen Argue. But either way his action augurs ill for the NDP. Few persons are better equipped to know the feelings of western farmers than Argue, himself one of them, and a spokesman for them in Parliament for the last 17 years. His defection from the NDP, after 10 days spent sounding out the political sentiments of the farmers in his Saskatchewan riding of Assiniboia, implies that the farmers who voted CCF will refrain in droves from voting NDP.

Shakespeare's comment about flood tides means timing. It would be naive to suppose that Argue has not carefully timed his departure from the NDP so as to gain the maximum political advantage from it. After a long countdown his rocket has blasted off. Will he go into orbit? Or crash in some Assiniboia wheat field?

Argue's ambition for higher public office probably precludes his return to the simple life of a farmer. So, having decided to quit the NDP, he was faced with a new decision: would he seek re-election as an Independent or would he become a Liberal?

What Will the Flacks Think?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Everyone knows that the way to succeed in politics is to lodge yourself in the public eye and cling there with the tenacity of a cinder.

Here are some of the ways you accomplish this, particularly if you are trying to make your political mark in the U.S. Congress:

You hold as many news conferences as the traffic will bear. You appear on radio and television programs at every opportunity. You issue statements and press releases, and you make yourself available for comment on any given issue.

You make speeches on the Senate floor and contribute material to the congressional record. You accept as many outside speaking engagements as you are fortunate enough to receive.

You make appearances at dinner parties, receptions and other social functions. You associate yourself with congressional hearings and investigations that are in the headlines.

Everyone knows you must do this sort of thing in order to get re-elected—everyone, that is, except Sen. Carl Hayden, an 84-year-old Democrat of Arizona.

Whoever served as Hayden's original political mentor apparently neglected to put him wise to the value of publicity. At any rate, he has gone through life courting obscurity.

What happens to a politician who shuns the limelight will become obvious next Monday. On that date, Hayden will complete his 50th year as a member of Congress.

This will make him the first lawmaker in American history to serve for half a century. Hayden, you see, got a late start.

Before being eligible to run for Congress, the former Maricopa County sheriff had to wait for Arizona to become a state.

As president pro tempore of the Senate and chairman of the appropriations committee, he is now one of the most respected, beloved and powerful figures in government.

Therefore, it pleases me to report that Hayden is finally catching on to some of the secrets of political success.

On the eve of his semi-centennial celebration, he will break precedent by appearing on a TV discussion program for the first time.

The program, a Sunday morning show called "Washington Conversation," provides only limited exposure, but for Hayden it is tantamount to joining the Radio City Music Hall Rockettes.

Had he been as publicity conscious as most politicians, there is no telling where Hayden might be now. He might still be sheriff of Maricopa County.

Use, Not Cost, of Drugs
Rising, Say Pharmacists

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Pharmaceutical Association says much of the public criticism concerning drug costs is unjustified.

It told the royal commission on health services Wednesday that it's the utilization of drugs—not their cost—that has been rising so markedly.

Between 1950 and 1960, said the association, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics index showed drug cost increases were below the over-all increase in Canada's cost of living.

During the same period, the number of prescriptions rose to 2.40 per capita from 2.06.

"Much of the criticism of mounting drug costs can therefore be interpreted as criticism of the increased use of drugs by prescribers. We believe such criticism to be unjustified."

DRUG THERAPY EXPANDS
It appears likely, the association said, that drug costs will come to represent a larger portion of the total cost of health care, due to increased use of drugs as an alternative to other methods of treatment. For example, drug therapy had extensively replaced institutional care in the fields of mental illness and tuberculosis.

"It is apparent that any estimate of future costs of health care must anticipate a probable continuation of the increased utilization of drugs as an important factor in such costs."

The association noted that there has been a steady drop in the number of drugstores relative to population.

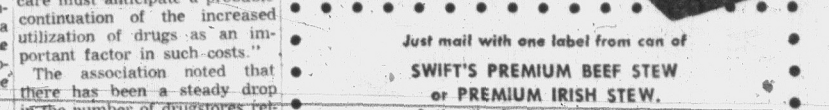

In other briefs heard by the commission Wednesday, the British Columbia division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society called for a change in the National Housing Act to allow low-cost housing, now available to disabled elderly persons, to be rented to disabled citizens regardless of age.

The city of Vancouver called for a study of the proper division of responsibility between various levels of government in respect to public health services and capital expenditures on hospitals. This should include a study of financial resources available at each level, designed to produce a formula for equitable sharing of costs.

Prices Still Down In Toronto Trading

Prices made a slight recovery in light trading today on the Toronto stock market but still remained down.

Strength in financial institutions and pipelines helped the market.

Crown Trust climbed two points to 60 and Crown Zellerbach added the same amount at 56, while Trans-Prairie Pipe line rose 1 1/2 to 35 1/2, and Interprovincial Pipe Line rose 1/2. Other gainers included Canadian Celanese, up 1/2, Bell Telephone up 1/4 and Imperial Oil 1/8.

Among losers were Algoma Steel, Texaco, Toronto-Dominion Bank and Steel Company of Canada, all off in a 1/4 to one-point range.

U.S. markets were closed today in observance of Washington's birthday anniversary.

AT TORONTO International Nickel led base metals lower with a drop of 1 1/2. Noranda fell 1/2 and Falconbridge 1/4. Among speculative, Lake Du-fall dropped 10 cents to $5.60 and Northgate added 25 cents to $5.30.

Western oils saw Calgary and Edmonton gain 1/4, while Dome fell 1/4 and Home A 1/4.

AT MONTREAL stocks remained mixed in moderate trading on the stock exchange today.

Trans-Canada fund gained 1/4 to 9 1/4 in heavy trading to feature the industrial section.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet and irregular today. Price movements were mostly small.

Shipping shares were depressed. Hoover shares declined. Steels gained a little ground but engineering were mixed.

Tobacco shares made rallies and chain stores held firm.

Oils and dollar stocks were dull while mining issues moved narrowly in quiet dealings.

AT VANCOUVER trading was quiet with prices off during the morning. Charter traded at $1.60. Bethlehem Copper was down to $2.32. Caribou was at $1.38. Granduc moved at $3.85 and Kamloops Copper at 39. General Resources was at $3.30. Torwest traded at 46. Western Mines was at $1.68.

NEW YORK (AP)—Toledo industrialist Edward Lamb claimed personal control of the Seiberling Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, Wednesday.

Lamb said he holds 51 per cent of the company's outstanding common stock, Monday, and culminated a six-year fight to wrest leadership from Seiberling family interests.

Lamb said he now has more than 293,500 of the 587,623 outstanding shares, and has another 30,000 shares in irrevocable tenders.

Associates of Lamb said it was one of the few times an individual has gained personal control of a company listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Lamb said he intends to modernize the Akron plant.

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices moved narrowly in a light, featureless trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Trading volume was well below normal.

The flux market disclosed a few orders credited to overseas accounts.

Prices on the oats and barley markets were fairly steady with some strength coming from domestic shipping orders in connection with feed supply.

Rye was irregular in a light, local trade.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat: Japan 900,000 bushels, China 575,000, United Kingdom 495,000, Portuguese East Africa 60,000, Germany, a small lot.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged on Wednesday.

Bell Phone Earnings $1.3 Billion

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bell Telephone System of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company earned almost $1,330,000,000 in 1961—the biggest profit any U.S. corporation ever cleared in a year.

It was the third billion-dollar-plus profit year for the corporation, largest in the U.S. by most measurements. The only other company ever to clear more than $1,000,000,000 was General Motors in 1955.

The 1961 A.T. and T. annual report showed net profit of $1,325,587,000, equal to $5.52 a share on A.T. and T. stock. The previous year the utility made $1,250,955,000, equal to $5.53 a share.

Record Production Year Seen for Mine Industry

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor
B.C.'s record mining year was 1956, when total value of production reached $19,067,465.

Bell

None of the following five years came close to that mark — the nearest was 1961 with production at about $182,000,000 — but this is the year when a new record is sure to be set.

With two big new copper mines in production this year — Craigmont and Bethlehem — several small ones, steadily increasing iron ore production, and a meteoric rise in gas and oil output, there doesn't seem to be much doubt that the industry will top the $200,000,000 mark.

It may even go much higher. Given favorable conditions, Mines and Petroleum Minister Kiernan said at the Chamber of Mines conference the other day, production value could reach $225,000,000 this year.

'NEVER BETTER'

Mr. Kiernan also mentioned that with copper production climbing to an all-time high and with iron ore reserves increased to several times the rate of current depletion, that "opportunities for both copper and iron-smelting have never been better."

It was certainly a broad enough hint that the government is anxious to see the development of refining in the province and has led to speculation that something could be in the wind in the way of further government encouragement for refining.

The buoyant optimism within the mining industry these days has spilled over into the stock market where the heavy play in recent weeks has been quite independent of outside markets.

Huestis Mining Corp., which jumped in and staked 20 claims adjoining the Golden Contact mine last week when Cassiar Copperfields Ltd. reported spectacularly high gold and silver assays from the property, has announced that it will get a prospecting program underway at once.

The property is in the south-eastern end of the Bralorne-Pioneer belt.

Cassiar Copperfields bounded to 48 cents in over-the-counter trading Friday on news of the assays and dropped back to 22 when it was learned superintendent of brokers Stuart Smith had requested an investigation of the assays reports. It was back up around 37 Wednesday.

One puzzling factor about the strike is why Cassiar Copperfields didn't stake the adjoining property before releasing the assay report.

Highland Bell and McIntyre Porcupine interests have also staked property in the area.

The recently reorganized Torwest Resources Ltd. has announced that contracts have been let for exploration on three properties.

Surface stripping will be undertaken on the Highmont property adjoining the Peel Resources copper prospect in the Highland Valley; an induced polarization survey will be made on the Marb claims west of Craigmont where an intensive drilling program was carried out last year; and a 2,000-foot diamond-drilling program has been set for the 10-claim iron ore prospect on the south shore off Kennedy Lake. Financing has been arranged through an underwriting by Highland Management Ltd. of 200,000 shares at 30 cents with options on another 800,000 shares at 35 to 50 cents.

Canadian High Crest Oil Ltd. has branched out into the U.S. with purchase of 7,000 acres of oil and gas properties in the University Field near Baton Rouge, La.

The lands now contain 41 wells producing about 600 barrels daily and has a high multiple producing potential.

The company put up $1 million and borrowed another $1.5 million from a Houston bank to purchase the property.

Because of a typographical error, an item in this space Wednesday stated the amount of the recent B.C. Power distribution bill for federal income tax as $2.64. This should have read $2.64 cents per share.

Seattle Fair Booth Cost Rejected by N. Cowichan

DUNCAN—North Cowichan council this week declined to pay $1,560 as its share of the cost of a booth at the Seattle World Fair, as requested by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

Reminding the members that they had not supported the bureau last year, Reeve Donald Morton said "ex-Mayor Percy Scurrey of Victoria, as chairman of the finance committee, had suggested that the idea of a booth be dropped because he did not think the money could be raised. However, he was over-ruled."

The reeve said the allotted sums were not pro rata to the gain which each community would get.

Coun. Gerry Smith said it was "a lot of money" and council would be far wiser to put it into a local community centre. The hotels, auto courts and shopping centres of the municipality would benefit little from the fringe of fair visitors who might come to the Island, he said.

COURTENAY—The new sewer system here will go into operation March 1, even if the contractor has to build a temporary lagoon.

The sewer contractor has given his assurance that the lagoon in Comox Bay will be completed in time. If some unforeseeable delay occurs, a temporary septic tank capable of handling the system will be put into operation.

Ald. H. A. Strachan said notices to hook into the system will be mailed to residences south of Eighth Street in early March. Connections must be made within 60 days of notification.

NANAIMO—Ald. A. W. MacDonald this week expressed dissatisfaction with progress made by the recreation department in developing Newcastle Island as a provincial park.

He said he was disappointed that Recreation Minister Earle Westwood had said nothing in an address to the legislature Tuesday about expenditures or proposals for the island this year.

"I feel that access to the island is most important and the quickest way to provide access for automobiles and trailers to the island this summer is by means of a ferry," he added.

"A bridge, of course, is the only acceptable permanent solution and is essential if we are to get the maximum use from the island when development is complete."

DUNCAN—North Cowichan council will give "serious consideration" to a request made this week by James Irvine, president of Chemainus Community Centre, for financial assistance for the centre.

Mr. Irvine said the group had a community hall and ball park, but outside of its own fund-raising endeavors, its only income is $600 per year from the provincial government. Expenditures last year were $5,000, he said.

NATIONAL PRESIDENT of Civil Service Association of Canada, J. C. Best, will attend E.C. and Yukon regional association at Malaspina Hotel in Nanaimo March 13. Other officials who will attend are T. P. Dunik, national vice-president for B.C. and Yukon, and W. H. Doherty, regional representative.

William C. Turner, Cordova Bay shorthorn breeder and well-known exhibitor in Vancouver Island and B.C. agricultural fairs, was elected in Regina Wednesday as a director of the Canadian Shorthorn Association.

Low Store Signs To Be Permitted

COURTENAY—Name signs on store fronts may be lowered to nine feet with special permission of city council.

A motion to retain the sign bylaw as is, with height limitations set at a 12-foot minimum, was passed by city council this week. However, special permission may be granted to lower obscured signs to nine feet if a merchant can justify his request.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Few sports provide an observer with an opportunity to study a wider variety of styles than bowling. In hockey the participants skate. Mostly on their feet. Some try it on their heads (after a re-sounding body check) and a few look like they have two left feet. Essentially, the form is universal.

Wrestling or vaudeville is not noticeable for its uncommon format. A sneer, a leer, a beer-barrel physique, a tag like "Delectable Darryl" or "Gorgeous George" covers the field.

Even ping-pong players appear to be hatched from the same pod. From the garden variety to the tournament slickers, they hop around as if they had ants in their pants, flicking forehands and backhands with a sort of benzedrine elan.

At the bowling alley it's different. Styles range from the inexplicable to the implausible to fluid grace.

For example, The Bomber: Comes in pee wee, medium or extra large. Using arm like howitzer, tries to throw the ball through the pins, the backdrop and six-foot concrete wall. Psychologist might find this type to be meek accountant, hen-pecked husband or harassed wife who finds bowling excellent escape hatch for excess steam.

'My Thumb'—(Every) Bowler's Lament

The Diddler: Frequently (but not exclusively) a member of female species. Tiptoes to line as if booties still sore from being stepped on at company dance. Carries ball as if it was hand-grenade or hot pie plate. Stops cold at foul strip, peers through bifocals and finally releases ball. Seven hours, three minutes and 10 seconds later watches ball roll into gutter. Returns to seat threatening to take up needlepoint but never keeps promise.

The Bender: Has more curves than B. Barot. Experiments with fast and slow hooks well mixed with prayer. Finishes delivery with so many contortions, can easily be mistaken for a Twist teacher at Arthur Murray's. Bleeds profusely because alleys are fast and slow but never just right.

The Throw-Tipper: Has no real idea where ball is going but simply throws it up and hopes for best. Embodies some of the weird technique of the bomber, diddler and bender. When runs out of normal catalogue of excuses, unfailingly returns to pew and remarks: "My thumb." Fellow bowlers never question this. In bowling lexicon it means simply that the knuckle did everything right and would be much better off if never had thumb in first place. This category gets its name from actions taken when player looks at score after last frame.

If these handicaps are not enough, a segment of men and women tenpinners in Victoria are finding frustration elsewhere on the lanes.

Blanket Photo Finish Is Pure Opium

Generally speaking handicaps are applied in sport to result in a fusion of the proficient and the weak. Turf handicappers consume baskets of tranquilizers trying to assign weights to horses so that all will finish together. A full field photo finish is opium for a track handicapper.

In local bowling circles, however, they seem to be running the wrong way of the track.

A case in point: the men's city handicap tournament saw participants rolling with last year's handicaps.

This put a severe crimp in the plans of the high average bowlers. Any one in the orbital range of an 185 average last year isn't likely to improve his status appreciably this year. This leaves him at a disadvantage against an improving bowler who might have had a 160 average (and 20 pins per game handicap) but who has hauled himself to 180 or better this year.

By not using relatively current averages, the improving bowler is forced to play his consistently high average competitor before they step out on the alley.

According to well-informed sources (Moscow, Washington) the men are going to dispense with the nonsense next year.

Less inclined to abandon their bloomer-age thinking are a majority of the ladies.

For their handicap follies this weekend, the dolls will bowl from a 150 scratch. This means that anyone with a 150 average or better gets no handicap. A 142 average bowler gets 11 pins handicap per game (based on 60 per cent of the difference between her average and scratch).

Time to Bury the Model T Handicaps

This still leaves the high average bowler (in the 172 vicinity) with a bonus of 29 pins per game over the 132 average doll. Ridiculous? Says Leona Peterson, queen of the keggers with a 172 average, "All I have to do to win is bowl my average."

It is significant that Leona was a member of a minority group which tried at recent women's bowling union gabfests to stress the importance of elevating the basic scratch figure.

Acting with remarkable lethargy, the majority have opposed the trend of the times (there are people who still regard the Model T as the best car to hit the blacktop) by pointing to their constitution and saying: "That's the way it has been—that's the way it's going to be."

In so doing they disregard the rules of the Women's International Bowling Congress to which they belong. Page 45 reads: "For handicap tournaments... set a scratch figure... of 350 for doubles and 180 for singles." The 180 is not arbitrary. In this case it applies since the top average is 172. Generally it should be three to five pins above the top average.

The overall effect of adhering to 1910 rules in 1962 is to eliminate competition. The rich get richer, the poor get poorer (and possibly get interested in tiddlywinks) and the bowling alley proprietors begin dodging the sheriff.

The time seems appropriate for alley managers to sit down and explain the facts to the dissidents. At least one plans a caucus with them.

Says Roy Berg: "It's not a matter of interfering with their organization. I just want them to read and understand the WIBC rules."

Sparkling Comeback By Victoria Battler

PUCKSTER UNDERGOES OPERATION

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Rookie Les Kozak of Rochester Americans suffered a skull fracture in an American Hockey League game with Providence Reds Wednesday night and underwent brain surgery early today.

Two hours after he came out of the operating room, a hospital spokesman said "he is still not responding and his condition may be described as fair to good." The surgery was performed by Dr. Walter C. Cotter. Kozak, 21, a left winger playing his first season in professional hockey, was injured when checked by defenceman Fern Fikman of Providence. He suffered a deep head cut and a depressed fracture on the right side of the head.

Special to the Times

SEATTLE—A Victoria welterweight had them roaring and stomping their feet as the 27th annual Pacific Northwest Golden Gloves boxing tournament opened here Wednesday. Danny McDonald, PPCL, came back from the brink of defeat to whip Al Meza, Wapato, in a match which brought the huge crowd to its feet several times. Meza had McDonald on the ropes and the fight seemingly won when McDonald, showing rare courage, came back to score a knockout at 1:58 of the third round. McDonald now advances to the semifinals.

Larry Cardinal, also of PPCL, defeated middleweight Nick Carter of Tacoma. Today Cardinal tackles Troy Teller of Portland in a semifinal bout.

Idle after drawing a bye, Victoria Boxing Club's Tommy Black meets Walter Carter of Munro, Ore., today.

'PARTING IS SUCH

Getting ready to buss the belle with the same poise he used in busting the ball is former New York Yankees ace, Joe DiMaggio. Ready to make the catch is cinemabelle Marilyn Monroe. La Monroe disrupted DiMag's work schedule as batting coach with Yankees, training at Fort Lauderdale, when she flew in for two-day visit with former hubby. Wednesday they said "so long" at Miami airport just before Marilyn departed for Mexico. (AP Wirephoto.)

NANAIMO IN LEAD

Lost a Game, Won Prestige

"I'm not ashamed of coaching this club, regardless of the outcome of this game. A little more heads-up hockey and you could take it."

This was the message Joe Iannarelli had for Esquimalt Pioniers Chiefs Wednesday. They took it to heart.

Before a relatively sparse crowd at Esquimalt Sports Centre ("everybody thought we would get clocked"—Iannarelli) the Chiefs dug and scraped and battled all the way.

They lost the first game of their Vancouver Island Coy Cup playoff to Nanaimo 5-4. But they didn't lose prestige. They took Nanaimo's vigorous but clean checking and never missed a step. With a little luck they might not have lost at all.

Nanaimo was leading 3-1 in the second period when Esquimalt's Les Corby walked in alone on Bob Lumley. Corby fired, Lumley got a piece of it... and the puck dribbled over the goal line. Everybody thought so except the most important person in the rink—the goal judge. No goal, he ruled.

Nanaimo virtually had it wrapped up, 4-2, with 10 minutes left in the third period. Then Bob Fowler, not long out of sick bay, made it 4-3. Two minutes later Art Green, with Esquimalt only five weeks, drilled the 4-4 goal.

With the clock spinning past the 18-minute mark, Stan Berry let go a drive from a faceoff in the Esquimalt end. Ron Griffith, outstanding all night (he blocked 66 shots) tried to sight it from behind a screen of players. He did—but too late.

Second game of the best-of-three series will be played at Nanaimo Saturday. An Esquimalt booster bus will accompany the Chiefs.

Third game, if necessary, will be played at Esquimalt March 6.

Gene Vs. Kleen

Promoter Rod Fenton had some good news today for Victoria wrestling fans who have been asking for a bout between Gene Kinski and Mr. Kleen.

Fenton plans to feature a clash between Kinski and Mr. Kleen on a March 3 card at Memorial Arena.

LONG BEACH, Calif.—Willie Bell, 253, Los Angeles, knocked out Roy Smith, 180, San Pedro, Calif., 4, edged British Columbia 9-7 in an extra end today to stay in contention behind leading Saskatchewan in the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

At the same time Saskatchewan continued as the only unbeaten rink, posting a 12-3 victory over winless Newfoundland.

The Manitoba win, which gave them a 5-1 record, set the stage for a clash in tonight's 11th round between Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

A win for Jim Willox' rink from Flin Flon, Man., could possibly force a playoff Friday night.

In other seventh-round games today Ontario edged Alberta 9-8, Nova Scotia beat Prince Edward Island 9-8, and Northern Ontario beat Quebec 10-7.

The B.C. loss dropped them one game behind Manitoba with a 5-2 record. Quebec was fourth with four wins and three losses. New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario have 3-3 records, Alberta and Prince Edward Island have two wins and four losses, Ontario has two wins and five losses, and Newfoundland seven losses.

B.C. COMES BACK

British Columbia made a great comeback in the 10th end to force Manitoba to the extra end. They needed to count three to tie and managed after Manitoba missed cracks at a double kill.

In the extra end B.C. got two rocks in the house early and concentrated on protecting them. Manitoba's third man aged to get rid of one of them and Willox took the other on his last rock to count two.

STARTING FRIDAY

The Victoria Inter-High School Basketball League wrapped up regular league play last weekend but the season is far from over. Four important tournaments loom on the horizon.

The first, The Greater Victoria Inter-Scholastic, gets away Friday at Victoria High. Gary Taylor's Oak Bay Greens meet Victoria College B's at 7:30 while George Andrews' Victoria High Totems duel with Royal Roads at 8:30.

The losers meet in a Saturday prelim at 7:30 followed by the winners at 8:30.

League officials have decided against a playoff to settle a tie for fifth place between Claremont, Belmont and Mount View. Instead the teams will play in the Lower Vancouver Island tourney at Central on March 2-3.

The third—and most important—prep hoop show takes place at Central March 9-10. Four teams from up-Island will collide with four from the lower Island in the Inter-High championships.

The winner gets the plum: a trip to Vancouver and a chance to knock off the best in the province in the B.C. finals.

Leaf Theme: Forget First, Hold Hawks

By Canadian Press

Any hopes Toronto Maple Leafs had of catching Montreal Canadiens for the National Hockey League title just about fizzled out Wednesday night.

To make matters worse for the runner-up Leafs their once-commanding lead over the third-place Chicago Black Hawks dwindled to a mere three points.

The Leafs were beaten 4-2 by Canadiens while the Black Hawks closed in with a 6-4 home-ice victory over Detroit Red Wings, fashioned on a three-goal comeback in the third period.

New York Rangers also scored three goals in the final period and beat the down-trodden Boston Bruins 4-2 at New York.

The Canadiens now have 79 points, 13 more than the Leafs. With each club having 14 games to play, the Canadiens need only a combination of eight wins or Toronto defeats to clinch a fifth straight championship.

GAME IN HAND

Chicago, moving at a fast clip after an early season slump, has 63 points while the Rangers took over sole possession of fourth place—the last playoff berth—with 53. The Wings are two points back of the Blueshirts but have a game in hand.

Leafs were so ineffective that they were razed throughout most of the game by a home crowd of 13,750.

The Canadiens scored on their first shot on goalie Johnny Bower and never trailed. Jean Beliveau, Dickie Moore, Henri Richard and Ralph Backstrom did the scoring while the Leafs goals were counted by defencemen Allan Stanley and Tim Horton.

Chicago's big men were Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita. Hull got his 36th and 37th goals of the season while Mikita bagged his 21st and 22nd. Hull also added a pair of assists and vaulted into second place, six points behind New York's Andy Bathgate, in the individual scoring race.

The Rangers, with substitute goalie Marcel Paille in the nets, were never in the lead against Boston until defenceman Harry Howell scored on a long shot on Paille in the 11th minute.

ON THE SOCCER SCENE

Night Games Coming For School Booters

By ERNIE FEDORUK

It's still in the planning stage, but Victoria's Inter-High School Senior Soccer League may operate on a "big-time" basis next season.

Officials of the school league are seriously considering the staging of doubleheaders under the lights at Royal Athletic Park. Games would be played Friday evenings.

The success of the 1961 final, played under the lights, prompted the move. Victoria High defeated Mount View Hornets 3-2.

Games, in the past, were played in the afternoons, attracting little, if any fan support.

Officials of high school teams are reluctant to discuss the proposed move "until something more concrete" comes up. Other soccer executives aren't hiding their opinions.

Both Wally Milligan, manager of Victoria's Pacific Coast League team, and Ed Viggers, president of the District League, feel it would be a great thing for everybody concerned.

They say there's no comparison between this month's version of North Shore Cs and the squad that stumbled its way through its first half-dozen Pacific Coast League games.

Bob Smith's rejuvenated play, plus the addition of Gogie Stewart and Bill Abbott, has done much for North Shore, which dropped three games to United, including a first-round Anderson Cup game, all by 3-0 scores in the first half.

New-look North Shore visits Royal Athletic Park Saturday (kickoff 2 p.m.) and Smith, Stewart and Abbott may be the ones to snap the shutout streak of Victoria's Barry Sadler.

Smith, after a poor start, has come on with a rush and shares second place in the individual scoring race with Westminister's Tony Crisp. Both have 10 goals, three fewer than Canadians' Neil McEachnie.

Abbott, who joined North Shore midway through the first half, has five goals, matching the best United has to offer.

Victoria's distribution of goals will never be criticized by those who never did like the idea of putting all your eggs in one basket, he says.

Tummy Walker and Geoff Hill each have five goals for Victoria. Ced Robb and Tommy Major four apiece.

Bob Mars' ailing back has responded to treatment and the Victoria centre half is expected to play Saturday after missing the last two games.

United's good news, however, was tempered by an announcement that the team has been fined $50 for its part in a ruckus in their Feb. 11 match against Firefighters. The mainland team was fined $25.

Gorge Hotel's success in the Jackson Cup competition and the team's lofty position in the District League speaks well for Jack McIntyre, one of the circuit's rookie coaches.

McIntyre has managed to get a lot of mileage out of his veterans (fullbacks Cliff Newman and Bill Hope are having good years) as well as his young players.

Gorge steps into Province Cup competition this Sunday, playing Nanaimo at the Heywood Avenue Park pitch.

McIntyre seemingly knows his players. When centre-forward Bob Swinton left for the B.C. interior, some thought McIntyre would experience difficulty in finding a capable replacement. Chummy Crabbe has moved to the centre position and Gorge hasn't missed Swinton at all... yet.

A District League meeting scheduled for Friday has been cancelled, secretary Bill Scobie advised today.

Red-Hot Rodgers Moves Up Notch

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Phil Rodgers, the man with a hot putter, stood second among professional golfers today as a result of his weekend victory in the Tucson open.

Rodgers was third last week. He picked up $2,800 for the three stroke victory at Tucson. It gave him a total for 1962 of $13,633. Gene Littler cost

TEEN-AGE CANADA

There's Magic In Number 9

By JACK HUTTON

Canadian teen-agers with a liking for mathematics might try figuring out in their spare time a mystery which has plagued the world's top mathematicians for years.

At least that's a suggestion from two of our teen readers. The question: What is it about the number 9 which makes it different from every other numeral? One can become convinced that black magic is involved if you ponder this long enough.

Gerry Hardy, 17, of Edmonton, was the first to raise the moot point after our column which asked readers to make the numbers between 1 and 9 add up to 100.

"You've touched a sore point with me," wrote Gerry. "Several years ago in Grade 8 a teacher pointed out some of the things you can do with 9—and it's bugged me ever since."

"Did you ever look at the multiples of 9? Look at them—27, 45, 108, 135—and they all add up to 9. The golden number just keeps popping back up. It's absolutely frightening."

By now I find myself looking at every problem with suspicion. Where's the 9? Did you realize that it happened all over again with the answer to your problem—98 and 27 over 54 plus one and three over 54?

Base Number

"Throw all those numbers together and you wind up again with a group of 9's. Why does this keep happening? I know top mathematicians consider 9 the base of the number system rather than 10, but what's the secret?"

By sheer coincidence the mailman who brought Gerry's letter also delivered one from John Marsh, 14, of Halifax. And suddenly I discovered two budding mathematicians miles apart worrying about the same question.

Said John: "Enjoyed very much your question about the numbers 1 to 9 which kept a few of us busy for one evening. But I wonder whether you'd care to go deeper into the number 9."

"Your other readers might be interested in a trick which is always bound to impress anyone who's never seen it before. First of all you ask some one to write down five numbers."

"Let's say they are 35627. Then you write below them 64372 and ask the person to write another five-number figure. Each time he puts down another group you simply make each number add up to 9."

"If you do this three times the answer is 299997. Three times 9 is 27 so you put two on the front, seven at the back and stick nines in between. If you had four groups it would be 399996 and so on. Amazing how many girl friends this impresses."

John L. McQuade of Winnipeg had another problem which I pass on without comment: "If it takes four men a day and a half to dig a hole and a half, how long would it take two men?"

And if you've a few hours to spare here's a final one submitted by an anonymous reader: draw nine squares as if you were going to play X's and O's. Then arrange 12, 9 and 7 so they add up to 28 whichever way you look at them.

Have to see whether I can work that one out before next week!

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—You have to admit that a lady always isn't one.

Comedian Jack E. Leonard, the insult champ, opening at the Blue Angel to a jam-packed house, had a real heckler over along the side. He yelled to Jack E. that he was sitting there with his son "Allen," which of course didn't interest Jack especially as he was trying to do his show.

When she kept it up, Jack E. encouraged by the audience, said to her: "Why don't you put on your glasses backwards and walk into your seat?" "I'm going to put on my spiked shoes and run around her nose!" "You remind me of my sister, and I didn't care too much for her either." He also said, "When you applaud, why don't you put your head in between?"

When Jack E. attempted a hat-spinning trick which didn't immediately work, the woman broke up even Jack by shouting: "Allen can do that!" Jack Benny, Red Buttons, Hal

March and Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme were among those who cheered Jack E.'s very welcome return.

Hugh O'Brien, the answer to a spinster's dream, should right about now be joining Princess Soraya on that Leonardo da Vinci cruise somewhere around Italy. Wyatt, who flew off quietly a couple of days ago, always refers to her discreetly as "the Lady" ... Rhonda Fleming shows off an awful lot of Rhonda Fleming in a bathtub scene on ABC's "Follow the Sun" March 4. Rhonda plays a lady marine sergeant. (How can I enlist?)

Before going on a recent TV show, Richard Nixon was asked whether he wanted makeup and replied: "Yes, PLENTY! With this peak in my hair and a heavy beard, I look like a villain."

Jimmy Dean's sold 2,000,000 "Big Bad John" records, and it looks like he'll have his own TV show again in the fall. The Texas turned New Jerseyite (he now lives in Tenafly) is flying to London and chat with the "country music" disc jockeys of the English provinces.

Gary Crosby kids Bing in his act at the International, saying that nowadays singers take drinks from ringside tables. "No more coming out like a nice fella, one hand in the pocket, singing bububu. Somebody better tell that other guy there's a new kind of show business. Somebody else—not me. Listen, I just got back in the will!"

EARL'S PEARLS: One way to get your wife to spend more time in the kitchen is to put an extension phone there.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The art of after-dinner speaking is the art of saying nothing, and saying it briefly. Gag writer Milt Josefsberg is quoted in This Month magazine on inflation: "That means your money won't buy as much today as it would have during the depression—when you didn't have any." That's earl brother.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Janis Masaoka, 10, Belmont, Calif., for her question:

What Is a Silverfish?

A silverfish does not live in the sea, as all of us know. It is rated among the insect pests that set up housekeeping in our homes and kitchens. He is one of our animal enemies, but this should not stop us from taking a look at him and his way of life. As a creature to study, the silverfish is very interesting and his family tree might make us feel like new-comers. His ancestors were here millions of years before the human family came to share his world.

If you catch one of these little insects, you will agree that his name, silverfish, is most suitable. He is a soft, silvery grey and when held in your fingers seems to be as slippery as a silvery fish. This is because his tiny body is covered with scales which act like loose, dusty powder. The silverfish does not look much like an insect, but if you look closely you will see that he has the correct number of segmented insect legs and the proper kind of segmented insect body. He has no wings, but the strange insect can point to this fact with pride. The original ancestors of the entire insect-tribe were wingless.

In fact, entomologists who study insects tell us that the silverfish very closely resembles the very first insects that appeared on earth hundreds of millions of years ago. Along with some 300 of his cousins, he has managed to survive without much change while the mighty dinosaurs came and went and the feathery birds developed from flying reptiles.

Easier Life With Humans

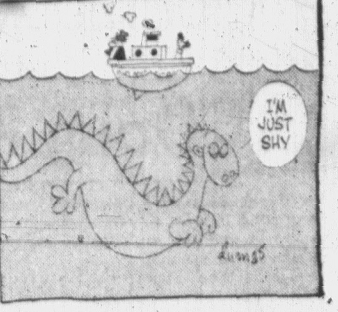

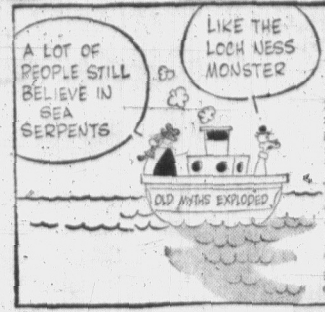

All this time, the silverfish and his relatives lived outdoors, making their livings among debris and rotting leaves. Most of them still live as their ancestors did. But when the human family came to set up housekeeping, some of the silverfish found themselves an easier way of life. They moved right in to share the warmth and comfort of our homes.

The little pests hide by day and sneak out only at night to feed. They eat paste and glue and often we can blame them for paper that peels off the walls. They also are said to eat rayon, which even the clothes moth ignores.

If you suspect silverfish, hunt in the cracks and crannies for a silvery little fellow about half an inch long. He wears two long, slim feelers on his head and his long, slim swallowtail may be made from either two or three spikes. Mrs. Silverfish lays countless dust-sized eggs which are very hard to find. The tiny youngsters are miniature copies of their parents and they grow bigger by molting many times. They become adults at the age of two.

Jobless Jeer Bennett From House Galleries

The unemployed Wednesday brought the legislature to a halt with taunts at Premier Bennett in one of the worst outbursts ever heard from the public galleries.

Shouts of "We want jobs" and "You son of a gun" to the premier brought threats to ban the public from watching the House debate.

The public galleries were full as the House opened its 2 p.m. sitting.

Most of the visitors had earlier taken part in a march to the legislative buildings by 500 men and women representing the B.C. Federation of Unemployed.

"OUT OF TOWN?"

The marchers had tried unsuccessfully to see the premier, but they were told he was out of town.

When they saw him in his seat in the legislature, some called, "We want to see you outside, Bennett."

The disturbances flared shortly after Works Minister W. N. Chant began to speak.

"We want jobs," cried a lone, but loud voice from the public galleries.

Speaker Hugh Shantz rapped his gavel. "I will not have any outburst from the galleries—or I'll have the galleries closed."

Mr. Chant continued.

"I notice I have a little competition, but I'm used to that," said Mr. Chant mildly.

Then a whole chorus took up the chant of "We want jobs" in the galleries.

Mr. Shantz told the speaker to sit down.

Mr. Shantz warned, "We can't put up with this sort of nonsense."

Mr. Chant resumed: "This government has provided thousands and thousands of jobs for people in this province."

He said it had built hospitals, schools, ferries, bridges. There were derisive jeers from the galleries.

Members of the unemployed parade started to leave, calling out their taunts to the premier as they did.

"People are hungry, and he's talking about something that doesn't matter," one of them called to Mr. Chant.

The premier ignored the jeers. He sat reading a copy of the B.C. Government News.

'GOT COLD SHOULDER' Unemployed Plan Return, March 15

Unemployed men and women who staged a noisy, chanting demonstration in the legislative chamber and surrounding corridors Wednesday did so because they "got the cold shoulder from Premier Bennett and the cabinet," a spokesman said.

Eric Waugh, chairman of Vancouver and District Unemployed Council, agreed there was danger that such a demonstration would detract from the purpose of the delegation, "but we got the cold shoulder."

He led a mass contingent of jobless who came mostly from the lower mainland Wednesday morning with the intention of presenting an 11-point brief to causes of the three B.C. political parties.

LEGISLATURE TO SIT PAST MARCH 15

Hint of the length of the legislature was given by Premier Bennett in the House Wednesday in an exchange with New Westminster NDP-CCF member Rae Eddie.

Mr. Bennett had said a date, March 15, had been set to meet a new delegation of unemployed, drawing a retort from Mr. Eddie that the session would be over by then.

"No," the premier replied. "The session will not be over by the 15th of March. I'm very sure of that."

INDIVIDUAL SOCRDS

Small delegations were welcomed by Liberals and CCF-NDP caucuses, but the best they could do with the Social Credit party was talk to a number of individual members in the corridors, and meet Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

Mr. Waugh reported the success of meeting with Provincial Secretary Wesley Black. "I'm sure we impressed on him our sincerity... but he would not say yes or no when we asked if he was in favor of increased social assistance payments."

"He went straight up in the air and said we were trying to put words in his mouth."

"We said that was exactly what we were trying to do."

Mr. Waugh told a crowd of marchers at an afternoon meeting on the steps of the building.

ACTION PROMISED

He said the provincial secretary told the delegation no one was hard up for social assistance and gave an example of "people drinking whisky and riding around in cars."

"He said he would look into any needy cases and asked if we had any for example. We said 'sure, we've got one right here—a man and wife... His face dropped a foot."

"He said he would get a member of his staff to look into it."

The chairman reiterated the "unemployment problem is here. Mr. Bennett cannot sweep it under the carpet."

He said a delegation likely would be back in Victoria March 15 when the government said it would meet spokesmen for the unemployed.

Meanwhile, the council would hold a meeting March 2 in Vancouver Labor Temple to arrange action for the next approach, Mr. Waugh said.

He assured the crowd that next time they appeared "Premier Bennett will not have the colossal gall he showed here this afternoon."

Earlier, Mr. Waugh observed in the corridors, "We can't wait until election day. The only way they'll take notice is for us to come over here in the thousands."

This would give time to provide an analysis of the need for such accommodation and a progressive plan of procedure in closing the home, the resolution said.

Passed without discussion, the recommendation of the VLC executive was identical to the unsuccessful proposal made by Ald. A. W. Toone in city council. He also is secretary-manager of the VLC.

COMPRESSED AIR JETS GRIND RUSSIAN FLOUR

OTTAWA (CP)—Airborne jets of grain—meeting in head-on collision—are being used to grind flour in the Soviet Union, says a Russian publication.

The grain is carried by jets of compressed air at supersonic speeds, directed against each other, and the impact produces flour.

New Fountain Centre Of Office Complex

The new fountain at the legislative buildings will not be in a backwater, it will be the centre of a whole new court of offices, Works Minister W. N. Chant assured the legislature Wednesday.

"In the plan for the government precinct it will be in the centre, not just something at the rear," said Mr. Chant.

"We have plans," he promised.

"With the growth of the province and the services which have to be rendered, we will need new office buildings. This fountain will centre in this area."

Mr. Chant also disclosed that the sub-basement of the new science building for Victoria College will be a bomb-sealer.

CITY HALL NUDEGE

"God forbid that it should ever be used, but in the event of hostilities it may be used as a bomb-shelter," he said.

Mr. Chant also prodded Victoria to build a new city hall.

He said the city "needs" it. "Many cities find it within their competence to build a city hall when it's needed and within their means to do so," he said, pointing out that this is Victoria's centennial year, and a good time for it.

He said his message to city council was: "Faint heart never won fair lady."

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

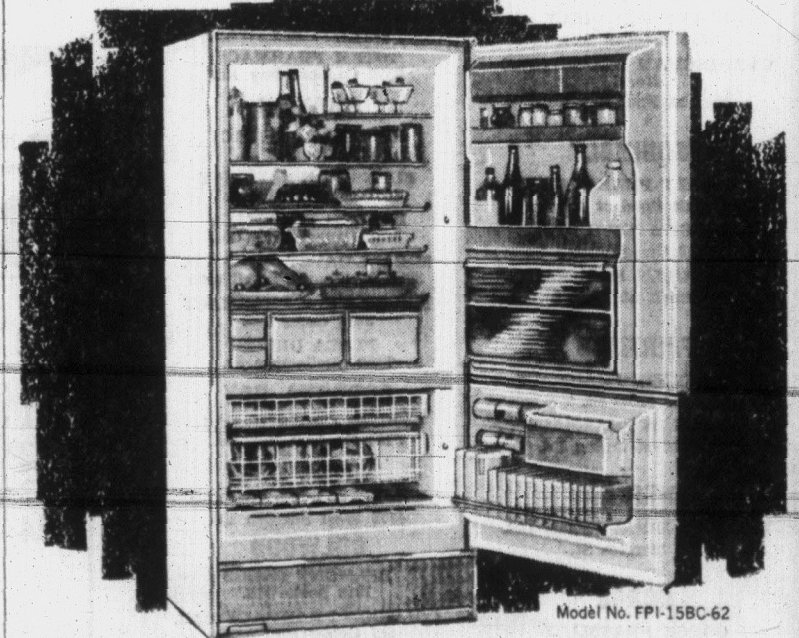

Now and then everybody gets a "tired-out" feeling, and may be bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary condition caused by urinary irritation or bladder discomfort. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help stimulate the kidneys to relieve this condition which may often cause backache and tired feeling. Then you feel better, rest better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all drug counters. You can depend on Dodd's.

Troops to See in Dark

LONDON (Reuters)—The government today announced some military innovations for the British Army, including an infra-red device to enable troops to see in the dark.

The innovations were included in a memorandum on the army estimates for the year 1962-1963 that set expenditures at £323,920,000 (about $1,500,000,000) compared with £510,802,000 for the current year.

Among other new equipment and weapons were a pilotless plane, a "swimming" tank, mortar - spotting radar, and a range of interference-free radios.

The infra-red device was designed to "facilitate movement and viewing by night without the aid of visible light."

The new "swimming" tank was the "Chieftain," which has a multi-fuel engine and attachments for flotation equipment "which can be rapidly fitted, to enable it to swim across rivers."

The maximum number of officers and other ranks for army service was to be maintained at 252,000.

by giving another shining, almost flawless performance in her playright mother's vehicle, "Whistle Down the Wind."

But the little heroine of Walt Disney's "Pollyanna" and "The Parent Trap" is not only not alone in this excellent film but is often upstaged by one even younger than herself, eight-year-old Alan Barnes who has to be seen to be believed.

Although it is not one of the best English dramas involving children, such as the flawless, multi-storied "The Little Kidnappers," Haley's mother, Mary Haley Bell, has written something warm and understanding based of all things, on a blasphemy.

When Haley, Diane Holgate and young Barnes in the roles of former Bernard Lee's three children go to the barn to find three kittens which farmhand Norman Bird tried to drown they surprise an escaped murderer who is hiding there. He stares at them and jactates "Jesus-Christ."

The children take the words as gospel, believing that it is the Saviour who has returned to earth. They feed him and make sure that grownups won't find out or they may do to him what they did the last time He came to visit the world.

Giving this bare plot outline should not—I hope—spoil it for those wishing to see it as "Whistle Down the Wind" has much more to say than this. It is full of the delightful "little things" that can lift a sound story from the ranks of the ordinary, making it superior.

What is more, the picture has received the highest accolades from various church periodicals of several faiths plus a glowing sendoff by the Legion of Decency.

In spite of young Barnes' impact it is, nonetheless, another triumph for Miss Mills. From start to finish of the film's 98-minute running time she holds the parts together, thereby giving the overall meaning and delicacy of the story its pith and meaning.

Full marks are also in order for producer Richard Attenborough and Bryan Forbes who directed it although there is a regret that they didn't refrain from regimenting all the children at the end like something out of the "Bridge on the River Kwai."

Cabaret Jazz Back After 2-Year Lapse

Eight young men with some contemporary ideas about music bring public cabaret style jazz back to Victoria Friday after a lapse of two years. They will play in trio, quartet, quintet, sextet, septet and octet in performances sponsored with co-operation of Club Tango, Oak Bay Avenue, at 9 p.m.

The last such public programs brought to local listeners and dancers were by Victoria Jazz Society in 1959.

Then, a now, pianist Buddy Glover and trombonist Ian McDougall, with reed man Larry Crawford, were leading musicians and are responsible for most of the original arrangements which will be heard.

MALE QUARTET
The "co-operative group" as they call themselves, will background some selections for a male vocal quartet—nameless but with a sound identifiable with such stylists as the Four Freshmen.

Personnel on stage will be those named plus Paul Lothar on French horn, Jim McKay playing bass, Bill Smith at the drums, Roy Derry on trumpet and Don Gibbs playing alto sax.

Tenor man Crawford also plays baritone and flute.

Famed American Tourist Booster To Speak Here

A man with the reputation of being the most successful tourist promoter in the U.S. has been invited to address the annual luncheon and directors' meeting of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau March 2 in the Empress Hotel.

He is Jack Olson of Wisconsin Dells, Wis. Involved in successful tourist enterprises of his own and with directorships on a long list of tourist, recreational and civic organizations, he is also widely sought as a consultant on tourist promotion.

Mr. Olson has recently returned from Hawaii where he was a director of a university of Hawaii tourist business research project. In 1959 he was named Wisconsin's "recreation man of the year," and he is a former chairman of the Wisconsin Chamber of Commerce tourist and travel committee.

Changes it shouldn't make were said to include cutting, changing the title, elimination of dialogue and reconstruction of scenes.

College 'Short-Changed' By Gov't, Says Ex-Student

Victoria College students are being "short-changed" by the Social Credit government which is failing to provide now for future college expansion, former student Tony Gargrave said in the legislature Wednesday.

The NDP-CCF member for MacKenzie said Premier Bennett's budget allotment of $1,654,000 — a cut of $330,000 in the requested grant — will mean cancellation of new courses and failure to hire new faculty.

There should be more generous aid to the college in view of projected enrolments — 20,000 university students in B.C. by 1966 and 30,000 by 1970, he said.

Mr. Gargrave, who formerly attended Victoria College and last year graduated in law from UBC, said federal grants are not a substitute for provincial aid.

On the subject of grants, Mr. Gargrave suggested a provincial donation be given to the Canadian Peace Research Institute with encouragement for it to be established in B.C.

He praised its originator, Dr. Norman Z. Alcock, who proposes to locate the institute, first of its kind, at an eastern Canadian university.

The invitation to bring it here would be a "dramatic gesture" and "a new industry" for B.C., he said.

NO HEALTH BRIEF

And on another social problem, mental health, the MLA said the government "made an error in not presenting a brief to the royal commission on national health urging a plan across Canada."

He said it was "regrettable the government avoided the issue placed squarely before them when the commission sat here (Monday)."

However, he praised Opposition leader Robert Strachan, who did present a brief and put in the government's views at the same time, and "did both very well."

Only the advice of professionals can produce a satisfactory plan of care for the mentally ill, but funds must be found and in this way a national health plan would help, Mr. Gargrave said.

Actor's Children Receive Damages

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—The two daughters of the late actor Jeff Chandler were awarded $233,358 Tuesday in settlement of a $1,000,000 suit brought against the doctors, who operated on Chandler and the hospital in which he died.

Superior Court Judge Mer-ryn A. Aggeler approved the settlement for Dana, 12, and Jamie, 14.

Chandler, 42, died June 17 in nearby Culver City Hospital after a back operation complicated by hemorrhages.

The children's lawyer said the money will be put into trust until they reach 21. They are the daughters of Chandler and his divorced wife, Mar-jorie.

The suit, alleging negligence, malpractice, wrongful death and assault and battery, was filed against six doctors and 20 John Does as well as the hospital.

Wayward Girls Hurt By MLA's Indictment

The 70 girls at Willingdon school for delinquents were "dejected" by the grave injustice of an MLA's charge that they were prostitutes and drug addicts, Works Minister W. N. Chant said Wednesday.

He was answering in the legislature what he called "wild statements" made by Dave Barrett (NDP-CCF—Dewdney).

Mr. Barrett said rural girls at the school became prostitutes and drug addicts because of the bad influences at the school.

Mr. Chant said the government was aware of only one case in six years of a girl taking to drugs after being in Willingdon and that was because her parents were addicts.

He added: "We have no case on record where a girl became a prostitute from being an inmate in Willingdon School."

Mr. Chant deplored the publicity that had resulted from Mr. Barrett's statements.

"This morning in Willingdon school for girls," Mr. Chant said, "there were approximately 70 dejected girls—who had heard this wild accusation over the radio—who interpreted this accusation as a grave injustice and who turned to their superintendent and repeated the question, 'Why? why do they say these things? Why do they call us prostitutes and drug addicts?'"

"Needless to say many girls were shocked."

CHARLOTTE WHITTON

'Just a Joke' — Pearson

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson said Wednesday night he was only joking when he offered Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton a cabinet portfolio if she swings her allegiance from the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Pearson made the statement to a reporter. He was here for a political meeting.

"At a press dinner she said she was fed up with the Tories," Mr. Pearson said, "and I jokingly told her to cross the floor and I would make her the minister of peace and public works."

Mayor Whitton later told Ottawa Board of Control that Mr. Pearson "offered me the works portfolio if I cross the floor."

"If he promised that, there'll be a revolution in the next caucus," commented Controller Paul Tardif, Liberal Commons member for Russell.

Liquor Permits End

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government announced measures to streamline provincial liquor laws Wednesday. Permits required since 1927 to purchase liquor in Ontario will be abolished, prices of liquor will be revised slightly upwards and consumption of alcohol in outdoor camps will be legal.

'SACRED COWS' SAFE Campaign Funds Reform Proposed

Political donations should be tax deductible, MLA Tony Gargrave said Wednesday, as one of a list of ideas to maintain party integrity.

The NDP-CCF member for MacKenzie said during budget speech debate in the legislature that "large donations in the past have warped party policy" with the result that "sacred cows are protected."

"How can political parties obtain funds without losing their integrity?" he asked.

Privately-held funds can allow political leaders to discipline rank and file MLAs and can result in business being shaken-down, he said.

Free broadcasting: He noted parliamentary democracy requires effective campaigns, which admittedly cost a lot of money.

To help solve the problem, individual voluntary contributions should be encouraged, there should be more free broadcasting time given parties during campaigns, more active judicial administration of electoral procedure and "genuine disclosure and auditing of expenses."

There should also be full disclosure of donations and their sources, limited allotment of funds to each party from consolidated revenue and a reasonable statutory limit on the allowable sums spent by central and constituency committees.

Mr. Gargrave noted the Social Credit party is the big spender on political campaigns in B.C.

Turning to the budget, he said it "lacked insight, courage and the firm belief that man controls his own economic environment."

In B.C. and across Canada the "phenomenal economic growth is at a standstill." There is "no clear concept" that B.C. can "beat its way out of this paper bag of economic recession," he said.

He claimed the government's sole fiscal policy is, "Well, we hope things will get better. In any case, the trouble we're in is Ottawa's fault."

But "Ottawa has no monopoly on ideas," he stated.

Cigarette Sales Campaigns Blasted

VANCOUVER (CP)—Tobacco companies were accused Wednesday of trying to build up their cigarette sales by campaigns directed at young people.

"The ever-growing subversion of our young people by tobacco advertisers and their employees is a rising threat to our national health," the Vancouver branch of the National Health Federation told the royal commission on health services.

Final Appeal Case Heard on Bastion Square

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The 73-year-old legal history of Victoria's Bastion Square courthouse came to an end Wednesday afternoon when the Appeal Court held its final sitting in the old brown-walled courtroom on the third floor.

The Appeal Court will resume hearings in the new courthouse on Cathedral Hill April 9.

"We leave this historic room with regret," said Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran, the presiding judge, after he and Mr. Justice H. W. Davey and Mr. Justice F. A. Sheppard had reserved judgment in a legal suit involving the national brokerage firm of Gairdner and Co. Ltd.

Mr. Justice O'Halloran paid tribute to the many learned jurists who, have sat in the old courthouse since it was opened in February, 1889.

"These old walls echo the words of great judges and great counsel who belong to the history of this province.

The dignity that has grown out of their deliberations over the years will, we hope, be perpetuated in the new building."

Mr. Justice O'Halloran's farewell message was addressed to a small audience consisting of four lawyers; William Bamber, clerk of the appeal court; Dennis "Pearce, official court reporter; and Percy McLaren, head janitor.

Similar sentiments were expressed by Chief Justice Matthew Bailey Begbie when the Bastion Square courthouse was opened in 1889. The Chief Justice referred to the old courtroom which had "filled well the purpose, for which it was intended," but said the new law courts were "the pride of every Victoria citizen."

Soon after the Appeal Court closed Wednesday, members of the staff began moving boxloads of heavy books and legal documents to the new building.

Similar activity was noted in the Assize Court and the County Court, which also served as the Small Debts Court and was used for the swearing in of new Canadian citizens.

The registry office and the sheriff's office, too, were in the throes of packing up and cardboard boxes containing deeds, wills and law books were stacked around the corridors ready to be moved.

"Everything is going smoothly," an official said, "We hope to be out of here by Saturday morning."

The Land Registry office, formerly located on the ground floor of the old courthouse, was moved last week end and opened in its new quarters last Monday.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1962 —PAGE 17

Is Hamilton Smith, 95 Today, Oldest Native-Born Victorian?

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Is Hamilton Smith the oldest surviving native son of Victoria?

He was born here Feb. 22, 1867, which makes him 95 today. His brother, Garrett Smith died here at the age of 90 in June, 1960.

The brothers were born to Mr. and Mrs. Moses R. Smith, prominent early-day residents of Victoria who came here in the big gold rush year of 1858. Whether he is Victoria's oldest native son or not, Mr. Hamilton Smith is justly proud of his family's long association with the city — and he is particularly proud of his late sister, Miss Selina, who was a famous Victoria musician before her death in 1938.

Still spry and energetic — a lean good-humored little man — Mr. Smith lives and looks after himself in a little old brown house at 16 Montreal Street on the old Newcomb estate. He cooks his own meals, chops his own wood and walks up town most days.

At home he treasures cupboards-loads of the music-classic and popular — which Miss Selina used at her recitals and in the teaching of hundreds of Victoria youngsters.

Miss Selina studied in Toronto and in Germany, and on her return here, opened a studio on Fort Street where she draped her pianos with fancy silks after the fashion of the period.

TALENTED SISTER

To that studio, twice a year, came the cream of Victoria society to hear their daughters perform, and these student recitals were regarded as social events.

"She was the talented member of the family," Mr. Smith said, "the rest of us were too busy making biscuits to work at the arts."

And that, of course, is another story.

On his return from the Cariboo gold rush, Mr. Moses Smith invested his savings in a modest bakery business on Johnson Street, near Waddington Alley, and it prospered beyond his wildest dreams.

He took his sons, Hamilton and Garrett, into partnership when they left school and the boys started by sweeping out the factory on Saturday mornings. Then they worked their way through the successive stages of biscuit making.

LIFE WAS GOOD

"We worked long hours in those days," Mr. Hamilton Smith recalls, "and there wasn't much time left for hobbies; but all in all, it was a pretty good life."

For years the Smith firm had large contracts to supply bread and hardtack to the British Royal Navy, then based at Esquimalt. The business moved to the north side of Yates Street to a site near where the St. Francis Hotel now stands. The gold rush was at its height and business boomed.

Mr. Hamilton Smith still has a copy of a double-page advertisement in the Victoria Daily Times of 1908 announcing in big black letters that the firm was celebrating its 50th anniversary.

SEAVIEW HOME

Years before, in the early 1890s, Mr. Moses Smith bought property at 1890 Dallas Road at the corner of Niagara and here he built the fine residence known as "Seaview."

There were barns and stables and his daughter and two sons rode on the beach and into the country on week-ends.

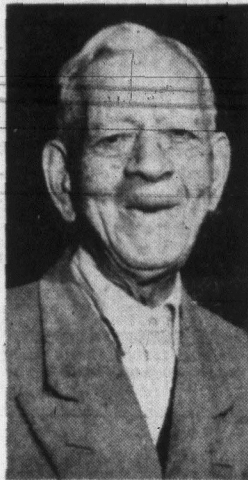

"Selina showed an early aptitude for music," Mr. Hamilton Smith said, "and around 1891 or 1892 she went east to study in Toronto. This was considered unusual then as most young ladies who wanted to study music went to Britain or the Continent."

"But she did go to Leipzig to study in 1899 and this added considerably to her reputation in Victoria."

Meantime, Hamilton and Garrett Smith continued running the business their father had founded until September 1909 when it was burned to the ground at a loss of $50,000.

"We never built another factory in Victoria," Mr. Smith said, "but we had one in Vancouver for a time."

Rites Friday For Former RFC Veteran

Funeral services will be held Friday at 3:30 at McCall's for Harold James Palmer, 63, Victoria Press Ltd. building superintendent who died Wednesday at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Palmer was born in London, England, and had lived in Victoria 48 years. He enlisted in the Canadian army in the First World War, but transferred overseas to the Royal Flying Corps and was with that service until the end of hostilities.

TO TIMES IN 1933

He joined the Victoria Daily Times in 1933, and in later years was country circulation manager for the paper. Eight years ago he became building superintendent, a position he held until his death.

Mr. Palmer was a member of Victoria Columbia Lodge No. 1, AF and AM.

Surviving are the widow, Eleanor M., at home, 712 Transit Road; a daughter, Tuppy, also at home; two sons, Ronald C. and Keith H., Victoria; and three grandchildren.

Canon H. J. Jones will conduct the funeral service, which will be followed by cremation.

No 1962 Plans For Four-Lane Pat Bay Road

The B.C. government has no plans for building a new four-lane Patricia Bay Highway this year, Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said today.

He said his department still is working on a number of different plans and no final choice has yet been made.

Surveyors have been working beside the present highway, but haven't yet completed final drawings of their proposals, said Mr. Gagliardi.

"Nothing has come to me in a final form," he said.

A number of property owners along the present route are worried about plans which might take a new stretch of highway through their lots.

"I would say they don't need to worry yet. Not until we know what we are going to do," said Mr. Gagliardi.

He said there were no immediate plans to go ahead with the project. It would be started "when needed."

Study Starts On Relocation Of 'Flood-Outs'

UBC Man Named For Columbia Job

Dr. H. Peter Oberlander of the University of B.C. has been named by the B.C. Power Commission to carry out detailed studies for relocation and redevelopment involving persons affected by the Columbia River development, in the Nakusp-Edgewood area.

The commission, in announcing the appointment today, said a second specialist will be retained to advise on the economic implications of the Columbia project on the Revelstoke-Arrowhead area.

COLLABORATION

Commission chairman H. L. Keenleyside said Dr. Oberlander, head of the UBC community planning department, and the second specialist will work in close collaboration with the commission's five-member redevelopment committee.

This committee has been studying for six months the many social and human problems that will be created by the flooding of the West Kootenay resulting from construction of Columbia River dams, the commission said.

Dr. Oberlander is expected to take 12 months to complete his assignment. It will include selection of appropriate sites in the Upper and Lower Arrow Lakes area for relocation of those who wish to remain in the region. It also includes designing of an appropriate group of residential buildings and community facilities to accommodate relocated families.

FURTHER STEPS

Dr. Keenleyside said these detailed planning and economic studies mark further steps in a long sequence of events associated with planning for the multi-million-dollar Columbia hydro development project.

The steps taken previously included a comprehensive census, a title search to determine property ownership of lands to be affected, a detailed economic study of the region and seismic, drilling and engineering programs.

100-Mile Ride Report Planned At Horse Meeting

Garden City Horsemen's Club is looking for new members.

The call was made today by G. F. (Gerry) Aitken, president of the Western-English riding club who said prospective new members will be welcome at the annual general meeting scheduled Friday evening.

The meeting will be held at the CCF Hall, Richmond and Cedar Hill Cross Road, starting at 8:30 p.m.

Election of officers for the coming year will be held and annual reports submitted.

Included in the reports will be one on progress of a committee headed by Roy Jewell which is arranging a 100-mile trail ride this spring in connection with the Victoria Centenary. The ride will be open to all-comers.

Cats, as either nuisances, pets, or both, are the cause of trouble between neighbors in the vicinity of Campbell Street and Lomas Road in Duncan.

Central figure in the dispute is Mrs. Morley Dale, who keeps two Chihuahua dogs in an enclosed pen beside her home, and who alleges that cats jumped into the pens.

'Outsiders' Tax In City's Power

$5 MILLION CRASH PROGRAM ASKED TO RESTORE SALMON

The B.C. government today was asked to spend $5,000,000 a year on a crash program for rehabilitation of salmon resources.

The suggestion came from the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, which this morning made the rounds of party caucuses at the Legislative Buildings.

A brief they presented to the caucus group included a plea for elimination of "so-called sport fishing for salmon which is in reality a form of poaching of the worst order," on rivers and streams.

Their salmon rehabilitation program includes: "flash" floods;

Construction of storage dams to control water flow affecting salmon runs;

Special attention to predator control.

New Zealanders Ask More Trade

By GORDON BELL

With the balance of trade between Canada and New Zealand running between four and five times in Canada's favor, New Zealand is most interested in increasing its exports to this country, John Stanhope Reid, N.Z. High Commissioner to Canada, said in Victoria today.

The West Coast area, he added, is considered of particular importance to New Zealand because of its great growth in recent years and also because of the strong links that have been formed between the two areas since the early days of steamship travel.

ECONOMIES SIMILAR

Although the economies of B.C. and New Zealand were somewhat the same, Mr. Reid said, it should be possible for New Zealand to exploit the seasonal differences.

"For instance, lamb comes on the market from the end of the year through spring here and we can take over with our lamb when there is no more local supply," he said. Canada and New Zealand have recently concluded an agreement, he said, whereby New Zealand will not ship lamb while the local supply is available.

MEAT BY AIRLINE

Experiments are also being carried on with flying meat to Canada, the high commissioner said and discussions with the airlines look promising.

As part of the program to increase trade, Mr. Reid will install George Laurence of Wellington, N.Z., as trade commissioner in Vancouver on Tuesday—the first time New Zealand has had a trade commissioner west of Montreal.

WORRIED BY ECM

Mr. Reid admitted that his country was very concerned over the entry of Britain into the European Common Market despite British promises that New Zealand interests would be protected.

"About 80 per cent of our meat and dairy production

SHIP VISIT WORD AWAITED

A Royal New Zealand Navy warship may visit Victoria during centennial celebrations, Mayor R. B. Wilson said today.

He was told by New Zealand High Commissioner John Stanhope Reid that the RNZN had agreed to dispatch a warship on a courtesy visit but final decision was to be made by the government.

"We're certainly very hopeful that the visit will be made," said Mayor Wilson.

HIDDEN ACE

But a search of the city's private act of 1919 showed that the city has an ace up its sleeve it hasn't played.

Under Section 18 (1) of the act, the city has powers to charge trades licences of everyone who works in the city.

Under the provision, the maximum charge on any jobholder would be $20 for every six months.

There are at least 20,000 workers employed in Victoria. At least half of that number live in Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay. The lowest trades licence now charged to an employer is $15 annually.

If council was determined to extend the trades licence to employees as well as employers, they likely would set the rate at $10 to $15 annually.

$800,000 MAXIMUM

This would bring in a revenue of $800,000. Maximum under the act would be $800,000.

Howls immediately would come from city residents, who would have to pay the licence, as well as the outsiders. But it might be possible to deduct the licence fee from ratepayer's taxes, thus muting to some extent the criticism of Victorians while taxing outsiders to the full.

Such a fund would go a long way towards building the $900,000 proposed Blanshard Street extension, which will be used primarily by visitors and Saanich residents.

Another beauty of the idea is that the three outside municipalities couldn't retaliate because they are governed by the narrower powers of the Municipal Act.

The idea of using the private act's powers undoubtedly will receive at least cursory scrutiny by city council and may get serious consideration if Vancouver is able to make its move stick.

MAYOR SILENT

Mayor R. B. Wilson would make no comment on the suggestion at present.

But city council was forcefully told in 1949 that it should seriously consider applying licences to all workers in a comprehensive report on taxation powers prepared by Victoria College economics professor G. E. Elliott.

Essentially, his argument is that if a city can tax employers, it also should tax employees.

Victoria already does this. Besides charging trades licence fees on businessmen, it also charges them against professional employees who are on salary and not in business for themselves.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Annual card party and tea of the Lake Hill Lawn Bowling Club will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company.

Winners of a recent Victoria duplicate bridge club tournament were Elizabeth Waite and Roberta Watson, black section; and Jack Perkins and Ian Smith, red section.

A "Company of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will carry out firing practice with a 3.5 rocket launcher in the Mary Hill area, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

A 10-man crew is at work on the $96,000 Saanich portion of the Douglas Street beautification plan of the Capital Improvement District Commission. Saanich engineer Neville Life said today.

A retaining wall will be built by the Heaney Cartage Ltd. property on the west side of street to broaden the level area and provide space for trees. There also will be bus bays incorporated into the plan, Mr. Life said.

"Our project should be close to finished within three months," Mr. Life said.

The city already has made a start on its portion of the project. Total cost will be $180,000.

A 55-year-old woman, whose body was discovered in the basement of her home Tuesday night, apparently fell down some steps. Saanich police said Wednesday.

Death of Mrs. Ada Huson, 990 McBrier, has been ruled as accidental. No inquest will be held.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me which is the oldest republic in the world? H.S.

A. San Marino, also the smallest republic, claims to have been founded in the middle of the fourth century. If a short period of control by the Borgias is ignored, this country could be considered the oldest republic. Historians disagree as to whether the Greek city state or the Roman government, between the expulsion of the Tarquins and the establishment of empire by Augustus, was the first republic.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times." Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or brain problems. We will attempt to put a value on old riddles, stanzas or enigmas. These should be submitted to a editor.

Keep Little People Busy With the Newest in Toys

By PENNY SAVER

Busy little hands often manage to find their way into mother's things when she has her back turned. So it might be wise to put something in those little hands that will keep them otherwise occupied.

I came across some toys today that are completely new and will mean a lot of busy hours for the wee ones.

One toy was a totem pole type arrangement that fits together in 24 styrofoam sections with slots on all four sides.

There are 20 special parts for animal faces and 24 funny people parts that are made of plastic and fit into the slots.

For $2.98 children would be kept busy for hours seeing how many different faces they can stack up.

Little girls will love making and wearing scuffy slippers.

A set includes black felt soles, yellow felt insoles and decorated bands, as well as a dull, pointed darning needle and two colors of wool. The soles have holes punched to lace and there's a design on the band to be embroidered. Complete instructions are on the back of this toy that sells for $1.59.

A little girl will enjoy making a pair to give to a sick friend or to wear herself.

Your junior astronaut could rival even John Glenn for $5.98.

They're made of parchment paper with light wooden frames and aerodynamic motif.

Prices are reasonable too, triangular-shaped kites are only 29 cents and box-shaped ones 39 cents.

If you feel it's time for something new in the playroom to keep the younger set occupied, call me and I'll tell you where to get these toys.

DEAR ABBY...

Put Up the Gates!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when dinner guests leap up from the table as soon as the last bite is swallowed, start carrying dishes to the kitchen and even wash them? I know they are trying to be helpful, but they irritate me. I live alone and would prefer to wash the dishes at my leisure when my guests have departed.

After the strain of having prepared a company dinner, I want to turn my back on the dishes; enjoy my guests and relax. When my guests insist on "helping" me, it means three or four women in my tiny kitchenette "working" while I stand and direct the operation. It's a mess. What is the answer?

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: When guests offer to do your dishes, talk louder than they. Say, "Thank you very much but the kitchen is 'off limits.'" And say it as if you really mean it.

DEAR ABBY: Can a couple get married by proxy?

UNDESIGNED

DEAR UNDESIGNED: Proxy marriages have been performed, but only under very unusual circumstances. Talk to your clergyman.

DEAR ABBY: Just lately four teen-agers beside myself saw a hit-and-run accident. We chased the car and got the licence number. We went back to the scene of the accident and gave it to the policeman who had just arrived. They caught the marauder and gave the credit to the police. We aren't looking for any medals, Abby, but this is just another example of how the teen-agers are smeared all over the front page when they do something bad. But when they do something good, somebody else gets the credit.

Shoulders Squarer Than Pattern—She Gets Wrinkle

"Dear Eunice:

"Kindly tell me how to remove the wrinkle on the back of a garment, just under the collar."

Mrs. A. F.

Dear Mrs. A. F.:

It is often a little difficult to pinpoint your difficulties without seeing you, but it sounds as though your shoulders are squarer than the pattern. This is a rather common condition and not too difficult to remedy. When cutting your garment, add about 1/4 inch at the outer edge of the shoulder, tapering to the original seam line at the neck edge. This will make the shoulder line less sloping. Now you must also add this 1/4 inch to the underarm of your garment, tapering to nothing at the notch in front and back. Your arm hole now will be the original shape.

It's Your Hair

If you have your hair done by an expert each week, don't let him stampede you into an unbecoming hair style just because it's the latest thing. If you have found a style which flatters you, stay with it. It can be brought up to date with slight changes every three or four months.

But to wear a hair style that does nothing for you is foolish. Explain to your stylist that it's your hair and that you will call the shots. Once he understands this, he'll most likely go along with you. After all, it's money in his pocket.

Bridal Gown Has Lace Highlight

Lace appliques highlighted the bodice of white satin gown worn by Gillian Patricia Stevenson for her marriage to David Frank Elise in St. Andrew's Cathedral. Skirt had a front satin panel and lace overskirt. Bodice featured a scalloped neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Elbow-length white silk net veil misted from a coronet of orange blossoms. White stephanotis and pink roses were in the bouquet.

Pastel-toned stocks and snapdragons decorated the cathedral for the ceremony at which Fr. William Hill officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson of South Africa; Frank Elise, England, and the late Mrs. Donald Pope, J. Harker, Vancouver, gave the bride in marriage.

Belled-skirted gown in blue-green satin was chosen by maid of honor, Miss Joan Alcott, Duncan. Bouquet was of pink carnations. John Stewart-Williams, Vancouver, was best man and ushering guests were Derek and Tom Horsfall, both of Duncan.

Mrs. A. Day, the groom's grandmother, assisted in receiving at a reception held in the Lansdowne Road home of Mrs. L. H. Margetts.

White candles and candelabra flanked the three-tier wedding cake that centred the head table. Peter Margetts proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to California, the bride donned a pale blue dress topped with a white Italian knit coat, blue accessories and red rose corsage.

Newlyweds will make their home at 1298 Dallas Road.

Several guests came from Duncan for the ceremony.

They were Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Whitmore, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Whitmore, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Price, Mr. and Mrs. P. Chapman, Mrs. F. Hassell, Mrs. Horsfall, Mrs. Mainguy, Mrs. J. H. Whitmore, Mrs. F. H. Price, Mrs. A. Day, Mrs. Esme Day, Miss Jane Price, Miss A. Day, Mr. R. Day, Mr. G. Day and Mr. Brian Price.

Other out-of-town guests were Mrs. K. Stamer, Parksville; Mr. and Mrs. J. Harker, Mr. and Mrs. P. Register, Mr. and Mrs. Colchester, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. P. Stewart-Williams, Miss Daphne Stewart-Williams, Mr. R. W. Parrott and Mr. C. Harker.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

February Winds Rough on Skin—Extra Care Called For

Dry skin is a big bad wolf at this time of year. Even though you use a reasonable amount of lotion and cream all year long, the cold weather and zippy winds of this season make our skins cry for extra measures.

The usual lubrication of face and neck is not enough.

Now is the time to use an eye cream if you have not been doing so, and a moisturizing lotion underneath your regular makeup. Also, let your cream soak in a bit longer. One of the hormone oils is helpful, too. Our faces really take a beating at this time of year, especially if you have dry skin and if you are past early youth.

When you buy makeup, ask if the foundation you are buying is for oily or dry skin. Even though you do not usually require an oily base in the summer and spring and early fall, you may find that it is advantageous to use one during winter months.

You may very well also find that a bath oil is a great comfort, even though you have not felt the need of one in warmer seasons. A body lotion also is indicated.

This is the time of year when you cannot afford to neglect your feet. The skin of your heels and the cuticle about your toes may become very rough. This is not only unattractive but may become most uncomfortable and even painful. In extreme cases the skin on the heels may develop cracks. You may also get one run after another in your stockings because of rough, dry skin.

This condition is easily controlled with a little regular, extra care. Never fail to massage the feet with a softening lotion after your bath. It is also a good preventive measure to massage cream into the skin of your feet and wear socks (white ones) a time or two each week on cold, cold nights.

And, don't forget your elbows. If you do, it will be a blow when you suddenly look at them when you put on a short-sleeve or sleeveless evening gown! They can use some of the extra attention similar to that which you give your heels.

You will meet spring in a much prettier and happier mood if you take these preventive measures to heart, and you will enjoy the cold season more, too.

I'VE JUST DISCOVERED that sauerkraut, that long-time favourite vegetable, has a fascinating history. It was first known in China in the Third Century, brought to Europe by roving tribes of Tartars... and now we in Canada have the most delicious sauerkraut of all—LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT. Yes, Libby's Twentieth Century methods of preparation ensure that every can contains the same delicious, crisp, mellow-flavoured and nutritious sauerkraut. High in vitamin content—low in calories—and low in cost... Libby's Sauerkraut is truly a "history maker!"

YOU'RE "FLIRTING" WITH DANGER unless you use GILLET'S DRAIN CLEANER once a week. Because even though your sinks are spotless, dangerous sewer germs lurk in every drain. No liquid disinfectant can budge the muck they breed in. It takes Gillett's special churning, boiling action to quickly scour out muck and sewer germs that collect in clogged-up sink drains. So, it's easy to see why Gillett's keeps drains fast-running and sanitary... and why it always leaves your sink a safe place in which to wash dishes. Do be wise... put 2 tablespoons of Gillett's Drain Cleaner in every drain, every week... then you'll know they are clean, clear, and sanitary!

PARTICULARLY IF THERE'S A BABY in the house, you'll need the help of versatile SUNLIGHT SOAP. Sunlight leaves baby clothes softer, fluffier, more comfortable than any packaged laundry detergent can... it cleans them beautifully, thoroughly, yet is completely kind to hands and fine fabrics. That's because Sunlight is all soap... pure soap. And Sunlight is the greatest help in keeping baby's room spotlessly clean. Washes floors, baseboards and painted surfaces with the greatest of ease and never a mar or scratch. For baby's sake and your satisfaction, buy Sunlight today—in the handy, economical twin-bar pack.

Brought Together by Astronomy

Astronomy, probably more than any other science, has been forced to co-operate internationally. Dr. Jean Petrie of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria told members of the University Women's Club, Wednesday evening.

"This international effort is required not only because astronomy is global in extent, but many astronomical problems can be solved only by observations distributed over the entire surface of the earth and there are barely a dozen telescopes in existence large enough to do explorations even within our own galaxy. Astronomy is largely the pursuit of knowledge for its own sake, and many countries have financial limitations. For all these reasons, the formation of the International Astronomical Union in 1920 was the outcome of a great need," Dr. Petrie said.

The work of the IAU is carried on in four different ways, by commissions representing different branches of the science, by symposia (one or two are held each year), by subsidization of work of general value carried out at one observatory, and general assemblies held every three years.

"I cannot stress too strongly the value of the informal but organized discussions of the assembly," added Dr. Petrie.

"The staffs of many observatories are small and, if the observatory is in an isolated spot, astronomers greatly need the stimulation of discussion with others engaged in similar research."

Dr. Petrie told how, within days of the launching of Sputnik I, radio observatories all over the earth, including Victoria, had set up equipment to determine accurately the position and timing of each satellite pass. Information was telegraphed to a central office for transmission to the Academy of Sciences of the USSR.

"The success of the union since the end of the war has shown that ideological and political differences fade away in our common goal, the exploration of the universe," said Dr. Petrie, quoting ex-president of the IAU, Prof. Struve.

Mrs. W. G. Milne introduced the speaker who was thanked by Mrs. W. A. Falk. Mrs. A. H. Gunning presided. Refreshments were served by Mrs. E. G. Tallman.

Elizabeth Forbes

Mrs. Joan Walrige-Gordon is in Victoria today to represent her mother, Dame Flora, Chief of the MacLeod Clan, at annual dinner of the Clan MacLeod Society of Vancouver Island to be held tonight in the Salthire Room of Holyrood House.

CLUB WOMEN'S NEWS

Tea Planned—Victoria Symphony Society Women's Committee met recently in the Lansdowne Road home of Mrs. J. Barraclough. Mrs. N. Isherwood was named convener for a Daffodil Coffee Party to be held in early April. Mrs. J. A. Hutchison was welcomed as a new member.

Circus—Fulford Community Hall, Salt Spring Island, was transformed into a circus "big top" recently when the Ladies Auxiliary to the Royal Canadian Legion held its fancy costume cabaret dance on a circus theme. Almost 300 dancers took part in the grand march and prizes were awarded to J. C. Smith and Mrs. H. East. The Melodiers Orchestra from Chemainus played for dancing. President, Mrs. W. Jackson, and Mrs. P. Cartwright were co-conveners.

Services Mark 'Thinking Day'

Churches in Greater Victoria will be filled with guides, rangers and brownies on Sunday at special ceremonies to honor "Thinking Day". Purpose will be to promote the idea of world friendship among guides of all lands. Similar ceremonies, parades and pageants will be held in many lands.

February 22 was chosen as "Thinking Day" by the movement as a tribute to the late Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell, founder of the Girl Guide and Boy Scout movements, and to his wife, Lady Baden-Powell the World Chief Guide. Both their birthdays fall on this date.

In order to promote world friendship Greater Victoria guides have collected clothing during the year and sent it to the local Unitarian depot for shipment to refugees. Layettes have been sent to Arabia. Money was collected and sent to a children's home in Korea and a donation made to the World Friendship Fund which is used to help guides throughout the world.

Some guide companies made bandages and diapers out of old sheeting for shipment to Korea. Another group sent picture postcards to sick children in Southern Rhodesia.

Through the Aid to Displaced Persons Refugee Committee another company adopted a refugee.

Give Parolee a Chance, Mary Louise Lynch Urged

Mary Louise Lynch, only woman on the National Parole Board, made a plea for the parolee Wednesday afternoon and urged the public to give him "one chance."

Speaking at Women's Canadian Club, she pointed out that the "parolee needs friends, work and understanding." Public spirited citizens can help, she said.

Miss Lynch briefly described the parole system today, explaining that "intensification of the system came in 1947 with changes in prison programs to include trades training, group therapy and education for inmates to upgrade their standards."

Once the inmate has absorbed the training and application for parole has been made, the board commences a period of checking in which family and friends are screened.

If the parole is granted, supervision is arranged for long or short periods. "Very often this is through an interested citizen who wishes to help," she explained.

Always in the minds of the parole board is "the protection of the public," Miss Lynch assured her audience. "If the so-called dangerous prisoner is given freedom, it is a life parole and careful supervision is always maintained."

The speaker told her audience that in 1961 the board granted 2,209 paroles and that there had been only 12 per cent failure. In the three-year period since the board was named there had been only an 8.9 per cent of failures.

Miss Lynch was introduced by the club president, Dr. Olga Jardine, and thanked by Alderman Lily Wilson.

Annual Meeting

The Consumers' Association of Canada will hold their annual meeting in the Public Library music room on Monday at 2 p.m. Election of officers will be held and reports made by committees.

Hold Tea—Nan's Coffee Bar at Fulford Harbor, Salt Spring Island, was scene of a successful tea arranged by the Burgoyne United Church women. Affair was opened by Dr. Norah Hughes of Ganges United Church. She was introduced by the group's president, Mrs. A. House. Assisting on the committee were Mrs. J. B. French, Mrs. H. B. Dickens, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. R. Patterson, Mrs. E. Campbell, Mrs. J. Stewart, Mrs. M. Ryan, Mrs. F. C. Williams and Miss M. Morris.

'World Laughs at Canada' Over A-Arms Indecision

PEACE PACT RATIFIED

PARIS (Reuters)—The cabinet today formally approved an insurgent French peace agreement ending the seven-year Algerian war.

The agreement now awaits the final stamp of approval from the insurgent provisional parliament, which is to meet Thursday in Tripoli, Libya.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has become the "laughing stock of the world" because of government indecision on nuclear warheads for its weapon systems, Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer said in the Commons Wednesday.

He said it is becoming increasingly urgent that a decision be reached soon "one way or another."

The indecision on nuclear weapons was "extremely frustrating" and "altogether incomprehensible" to Canada's allies. "We are spending a lot of money for weapon systems which are operational now except for the fact that they are unarmed and we are continuing to spend hundreds of millions of dollars for further weapon systems which are in the same category," he said during the Throne Speech debate.

Pressed for his view, Mr. Hellyer said: "I think a decision should be made one way or another."

He did not say which decision he favored.

Mr. Hellyer also attacked the government for taking a "negative attitude" on Britain's negotiations for membership in the European Common Market.

Mr. Hellyer said that Finance Minister Fleming had accused the Liberals of using the "big lie" tactic and misrepresenting the Canadian position put forward at the Commonwealth conference in Ghana last September, where Britain's move toward the Common Market was discussed.

Yet Mr. Fleming himself, after the Commonwealth conference, had emphasized to British journalists that Commonwealth countries had been unanimous in their condemnation of the British move.

Gov't Aid Asked For Fair Booth

The B.C. government should assist Vancouver Island to get a booth at the Seattle World's Fair through a cash contribution from the Toll Authority, Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane said Wednesday.

He called on the government to show some leadership in rescuing the Island from financial difficulties which may kill the plan.

"I assumed that we would have a prominent place there," he told the legislature. "I was astounded and shocked to find that the government had made no such provision."

Mr. Macfarlane said that originally the plan was to get money from the transportation industry to help finance the booth. Money had been expected from the CPR and Black Ball ferries. Now the government had taken over Black Ball.

"The government should step in and take the lead in encouraging donations by other transportation companies. They should make the first donation themselves and make a donation at least as large as Black Ball would have done."

City, Saanich Talks Asked on Golf Plans

Saanich councillors will meet Mayor R. B. Wilson to discuss a proposal to develop a $110,000 nine-hole golf course on an 80-acre tract of land at Beaver and Elk Lakes.

Decision to seek an audience with the mayor was made at a council meeting Monday after councillors disagreed over whether the course should be developed by the municipality or privately.

A third alternative to be discussed with the mayor is for the city and Saanich to operate the course jointly through a specially-appointed board.

The city has been informed of the golf course proposal but is waiting for Saanich council to clarify its stand before taking any action.

ABOUT FACE Saanich initially favored a municipally operated golf course, but some councillors Monday did an about-face.

Coun. Hugh Curtis said he was opposed "in principle" to the municipality developing and operating its own golf course.

Coun. Gregory Cook, who urged council to abide by its original plan, said there is nothing new in a municipally operating a course.

THEY PAY "The Vancouver Parks Board operates three golf courses," he said. "So do many cities in the United States. They pay for themselves."

He said a municipally-operated course would ensure proper development of the area.

Coun. Robert Chard, an original supporter for the municipally-operated course, said he preferred to see money spent instead on building swimming pools.

Both Couns. Joseph Casey and Harold Todd felt that council should look into the possibility of a company or person developing the course.

THEY PROMISED Roy Wooten, president, expressed the hope that councillors would not "back down from their election promises" for a municipally operated golf course.

"We questioned all councillors-elect and elected candidates on this issue," he said. "They were all in favor of a municipally golf course."

Censorship Plan Backed By Churchman

TORONTO (CP)—An official of the United Church of Canada has called for institution of a censorship system that would restrict certain books to professional workers such as socialists, doctors, lawyers and ministers.

Dr. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social services, made the suggestion Wednesday at the board's annual meeting.

He called for establishment of a government - appointed panel which would restrict some books, such as Lady Chatterley's Lover, to their original definitive volume and ban condensed versions.

He said such a move would largely prevent young persons from obtaining such books.

Dr. Berry recommended that the panel comprise literary editors, a psychiatrist, a doctor, a probation officer, and "an ordinary housewife or two."

Psychiatric Care Plan Could Fail for Staff

Government plans to create a model system of care for mental patients are liable to fail due to an inability to attract staff.

A former president of the association of psychiatric aides on Vancouver Island today criticized the government for ignoring "the most important group" in government-run mental hospitals in its budget of Feb. 9.

AIDES LEFT OUT The budget called for a raise for civil servants which includes psychiatric nurses in government hospitals. The psychiatric aide was not mentioned.

The aides feel this is particularly unfair due to the fact that the nurses have received raises four times since 1959.

while their salary has remained unchanged.

They point out that the new mental institution which the government proposes to build in Victoria to replace the Colquhoun hospital requires dedicated and qualified personnel to run it. However, such personnel are being lost by the low salary offered.

Aides feel that their work including personal care of patients and menial work, often with some danger involved, deserves more than the $221 to $286 per month which they receive. This is $60 per month less than the salary of equivalent personnel in other hospitals.

There are over 1,300 psychiatric aides in government institutions throughout the province.

BUT HOW LONG?

It's Still One Man, One Wife

Are harems on the way? That's one of the more embarrassing questions that soon may bring blushes to the cheeks of Canada's stalwart immigration officers, an official indicated today.

For the present, the department plans to hang on to its present one-for-one policy—one wife per immigrant male and vice versa—but the winds of change obviously are beginning to blow.

NEW NATIONS It's all the result of the new nations emerging from colonialism.

They want respect for their traditional marital customs as well as their culture and new-found independence.

And that means they want the white nations to recognize institutions such as harems and concubines where they apply.

Great Britain now has a bill before its Parliament that will do just that—ordering its immigration officers to bear in mind any local custom or tradition tending to establish the permanence of association between a man and woman.

APPLY TO ALL "We don't recognize mistresses or the Muslim custom which permits a man to have four wives," said the Canadian official. "Canadian laws and customs apply to all immigrants."

But changing world conditions eventually may bring about a redefinition of the word "marriage" in immigration regulations.

More and more countries with customs different than ours are becoming independent "and they now are asking that their customs be respected," he said.

'FACTSMANSHIP' NEEDED

Liberal Taunts Arouse Bennett

Power, Debt Ferries Questioned

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane Wednesday fought an hour-long battle of words with Premier Bennett in which he nearly was ejected from the legislature and which completely shattered brotherly love and apathetic debate.

Mr. Macfarlane demonstrated how effectively, more so than any other MLA, he can needle the premier, and push the needle under his skin.

He berated the premier (who lives in Oak Bay) on a number of counts.

Purchase of Black Ball ferries; the Peace River project; secret government; debt.

Nearly Ejected

He called him: "a master of double talk"; a showman; arrogant.

He asked him to show some "factsmanship" for a change.

He nearly got thrown out of the legislature for accusing Education Minister Leslie Peterson of saying "half truths" about debt.

The premier immediately jumped up (he took about 10 such jumps during the speech) to demand the remark be withdrawn.

Speaker Hugh Shantz agreed.

"I will not; I will complete my remarks which will explain it," said Mr. Macfarlane.

Speaker Adamant

Mr. Shantz insisted.

"Under order of the House only," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"He's showing complete disrespect for the Speaker," cried the premier.

"I might as well be muzzled," complained Mr. Macfarlane.

"Mr. Speaker, he's suggesting he's being muzzled," the premier said.

Mr. Shantz got to his feet.

"The honorable member has come so close to being named in this House," he said. "He has been disrespectful to the chair. I will not tolerate it."

If the Speaker "names" a member he is automatically ejected from the legislature. It hasn't happened since 1955 when the victim was North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, although Mr. Shantz threatened two CCFers last year.

'No Disrespect'

Mr. Macfarlane finally bowed.

"No disrespect—not the slightest bit—was meant to you," he told the Speaker. "I was answering the premier across the floor of the House."

"Weaseling," said Premier Bennett.

Tony Gargrave (NDP-CCF Mackenzie) sprang to the defence.

Power Fight In Turkey

ANKARA (AP)—Turkish air and ground force units struggled in Ankara and other Turkish centres tonight over support of Premier Ismet Inonu's coalition government. No casualties were immediately reported as air force units and army ground troops tried to take over control of key centres.

UNION BACKING

'Argue Knew'—Fisher

OTTAWA (CP)—Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) said in the Commons today Hazen Argue knew for many months that his travel expenses were being largely paid by three big trade unions but did not object then to their financial support of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Fisher, chairman of the CCF-NDP caucus and the man who nominated Mr. Argue for the leadership of the new party at its founding convention last August, was delivering the first parliamentary rebuttal to Mr. Argue's statements since his defection.

Mr. Argue resigned from the party and its parliamentary leadership Sunday, charging the NDP had come under the domination of a clique of labor union leaders.

Mr. Fisher said he spoke on behalf of three other CCF MPs who had supported Mr. Argue in his unsuccessful fight with former Saskatchewan premier, T. C. Douglas for the NDP national leadership.

He said they and the other CCF-NDP members of the Commons take no issue with Mr. Argue's democratic right to switch his political allegiance.

But he said Mr. Argue had continued to work in the NDP until he resigned the parliamentary leadership in a "cool, deliberate and malignant way."

Speaker Roland Michener ordered him to withdraw references to malignancy, and he did.

Mr. Fisher also said that from the beginning of last year until the new party founding convention, which opened July 31, Mr. Argue's travel expenses had amounted to about $5,000.

"That figure is completely inaccurate and false," said Mr. Argue, jumping up from his new seat in the Commons between the Liberal and Conservative benches.

"I have seen the figure," said Mr. Fisher.

"I have denied the figure and he (Mr. Fisher) must accept my word," Mr. Argue said.

CAME FROM UNIONS

Mr. Fisher said the money to pay Mr. Argue's travel expenses had come from the party, and it came "largely from the trade union."

He named the United Automobile Workers, the United Steel Workers, and the United Packinghouse Workers.

'INVADERS TRAINING IN PANAMA'

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today the United States is training Cuban invasion forces in jungle camps in the Panama Canal Zone.

It was one of the most specifically documented of the Fidel Castro regime's long string of claims that a new invasion is in the making. Almost a year has passed since the unsuccessful invasion of last April 17.

The radio said other training camps are located in a Panamanian province on the Pacific coast, identified as Los Santos, and claimed a submarine base is in the same area.

Wheat Price Hiked

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today a ten-cent bushel increase in the initial price paid to Western farmers for wheat, bringing it to $1.50 a bushel for No. 1 northern basis Fort William.

"I saw a submarine," he said. "I'm positive of that. I was trained in sub spotting as a pilot with the Danish Air Force. I've seen dozens of them from the air."

He said the object he saw was pointed at either end and had stabilizers on both sides of the two points.

The navy search turned up several large logs floating in the area, including one about 30 feet long.

IN BERLIN

Renewed pledge of U.S. determination to stand by isolated city of West Berlin was made today by Ambassador Robert Kennedy in speech at city hall of divided city. Kennedy, near end of month-long world tour, was cheered by thousands of West Berliners.

German Talks Backed

BONN (AP)—West Germany agreed today in replying to a Soviet memorandum suggesting bilateral negotiations on Berlin and Germany—that an improvement in relations between the two countries should be sought through a step-by-step method.

But the Bonn government's answering memorandum, delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Hans Kroll, insisted relations never could be fully normal until the Soviet Union allows East and West Germany to be reunified through free elections.

The 22-page answer said West Germany is willing to investigate every possibility of removing differences with the Soviet Union "in view of the fatal consequences in which a thoughtless and rash step in the present critical situation might involve not only our two peoples but the whole world."

The government undertakes that anything undertaken would be in close agreement with its Western allies.

The Soviet memorandum of Dec. 27 made a plea for a new understanding between what it called "the two greatest countries of Europe" and proposed bilateral negotiations to this end on the Berlin and German problems.

All-Out Measures To Avert Blood Bath

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle's government all but sealed off violence-torn Algeria from the outside world today in an all-out effort to prevent a new bloodbath when a cease-fire is proclaimed—probably within 10 days.

Security measures were stepped up both in France and Algeria as the rebel parliament, the National Council of the Algerian Revolution, met in the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

It convened in special session there to ratify or reject a draft cease-fire agreement concluded with the French last weekend. The pact was approved by the French cabinet Wednesday night.

French officials expected the CNRA to ratify the pact and that a cease-fire, ending nearly seven-and-a-half years of bloodshed, would be proclaimed by March 5 at latest.

DESPERATE FIGHT

The French government hastened measures to guard against a mass outbreak of violence between Moslems and Europeans in Algeria or a possible attempt to seize power by the terrorist Secret Army Organization which is fighting desperately to prevent the country coming under Moslem rule.

All flights between France and Algeria today were cancelled. All entry permits for Algeria were declared no longer valid.

Authorities announced that when flights are resumed—probably Friday—all passengers to and from Algeria will be searched and their identities doublechecked by airport security police.

In Algeria itself equally stern measures were in force. Tanks and armored cars patrolled the main streets of Algiers. Army reinforcements reached the big western port city of Oran, which has been racked by terrorism for the past six weeks.

Troops were held ready to seal off the European and Moslem quarters as a precaution against racial slaughter once the cease-fire is signed.

UIC Raises Limits For Pension Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment Insurance Commission regulations have been amended to increase to $20 a week from $14 allowable earnings of dependents. Labor Minister Starr announced today in the Commons.

The change became effective Feb. 1. The increase in the old age pension to $65 from $55 a month, effective the same date, raised income for dependents of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits above the permissible ceilings.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said he hopes this lead will be followed by other cabinet ministers. He referred to the fact that allowable earnings have not been increased for recipients of war veterans' allowances.

TRAIN CRASH KILLS 40

BOGOTA (AP)—A head-on collision of passenger and freight trains killed 40 persons today, the Colombian National Railways announced.

About 100 persons were reported injured, including five United States cadets from a training ship of the California Maritime Academy at San Diego.

Invitation Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Premier Einar Gerhardsen of Norway has accepted an invitation from President Kennedy to visit the United States in May, the White House announced Wednesday. The premier will be in the United States as a presidential guest for five days, beginning May 8.

Terrorism Wave

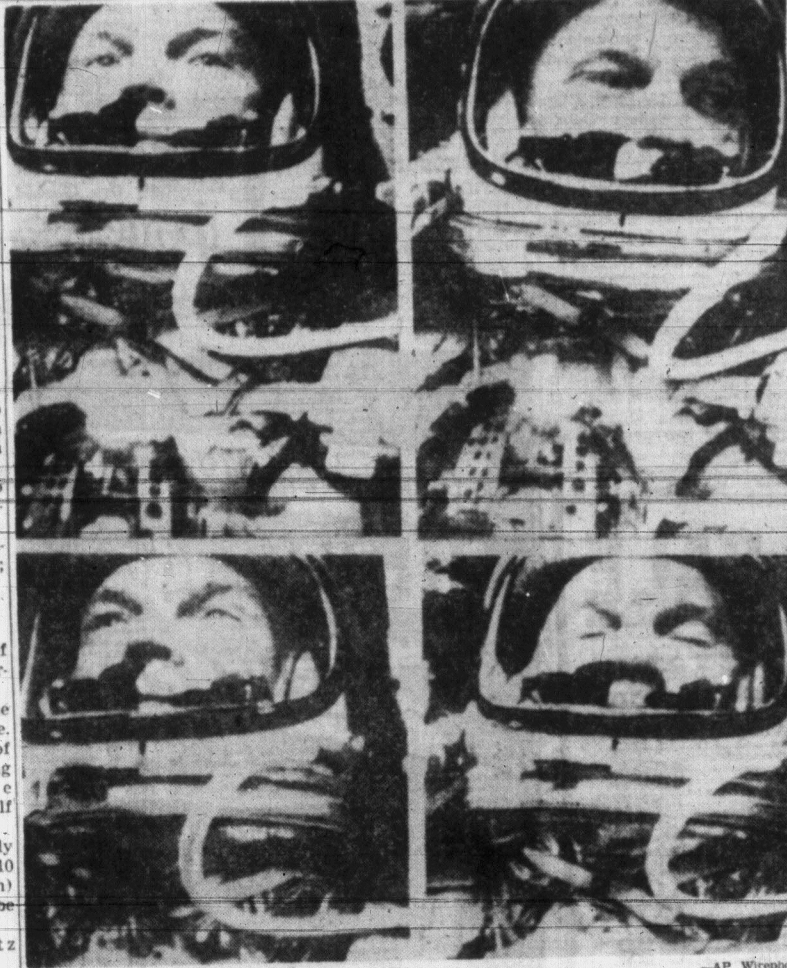

ALGERS (AP)—A wave of terrorist attacks swept Algiers today as the right-wing Secret Army Organization made a last-ditch effort to wreck an impending French-Algerian agreement to end the 7½-year rebellion.

Blizzard Warning

EDMONTON (CP)—Blizzard warnings were issued for central and southern Alberta today as an intense storm moved rapidly southeastward through the province.

10 Hurt In Fire

MONTREAL (CP)—About ten persons were injured and taken to hospital during a fire that destroyed a 16-dwelling apartment block in suburban Montreal East today.

ASTRONAUT AT WORK

Four views of astronaut John Glenn taken from automatically-operated motion picture camera during space flight Tuesday were released today.

Glenn's head turns and his eyes rove as he scans instruments and views the earth spinning below him. (See also page 3.)

Negro Children Routed By Rhodesian Police Dogs

SALISBURY (AP)—South school children who marched into the centre of Salisbury to demand an interview with the minister of native education, were routed today by Rhodesian police using dogs.

The march was the latest in a series of complaints by Negro children that they were unable to get places in local schools. Negro organizations claim many children were accepted in schools for the beginning of the school year recently but then were told there was no room for them.

The result has been a number of demonstrations by school children, which have been curbed by police. Police have been stoned by the children on several occasions.

In today's demonstration the youngsters got to the minister's office and police arrived in riot wagons with dogs. Officers told the children some of them could go into the building to see the minister but they refused to split up.

Officers then ordered them to disperse and they began to move away. A police spokesman said later one child was arrested for obstructing the police.

Without CONTROLS

It continues to stand on its Nov. 28 proposal for a big power test-ban pledge which allows no international control.

That proposal was formally rejected by the Western side before the nuclear talks were broken off last month. At that time Britain and the United States said in view of the adamant Soviet refusal to allow international test-ban controls the talks should recess immediately until a new common basis is found.

SOFT-HEARTED LANDLORD FIRED

'He Did Everything He Could ...'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The 25-year-old mother of five children sat in her shabby-furnished apartment in the low-rent development today and commented:

"If it hadn't been for Mr. Steingrubby a lot of people would have been set out."

Burt Steingrubby was manager of the housing project until Wednesday. He was a forced out of his job because he dug into his own pocket to make up the difference when tenants, hard-pressed financially, couldn't meet the full amount of the rent. He was suspended two weeks ago.

Both Negroes and whites live in the housing area. About 75 per cent of the tenants—708 families—are Negroes.

"He did everything he could to help the people. He used a lot of his own money to pay rent for them. Some people in this building owe him money right now. They would have been evicted if not for him."

"Ever since they let him go they've been moving people out."

"I have no regrets," said Steingrubby. "I would do the same thing all over again."

Steingrubby, 43, father of five, resigned when the St. Louis Housing Authority gave him the option of quitting or being fired.

Charles Farris, director of the authority, said Steingrubby violated agency policy by accepting partial payments on rent and by keeping his own books. No money was missing.

Steingrubby explained "Some families came to me with a partial payment, and I used my own money to make up the balance of their rent."

Steingrubby said he never charged interest.

"I never lost a penny. I don't consider it as money lost. It's charity helping these people. I made $600 a month that's more than I needed."

Steingrubby admitted that during his four years as manager of several housing projects he had not been repaid about $1,000.

But, he said, the alternative to helping the tenants was eviction. "There's no point in moving these families into the project to help them and then throw them out in the street again."

Steingrubby now has a job as a foreman in a small plant, earning about half his salary as project manager.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices Still Down In Toronto Trading

Prices made a slight recovery in light trading today on the Toronto stock market but still remained down.

Strength in financial institutions and pipelines helped the market.

Crown Trust climbed two points to 60 and Crown Zellerbach added the same amount at 56, while Trans-Prairie Pipe Line rose 1 1/2 to 35 1/2, and Interprovincial Pipe Line rose 1/2.

Other gainers included Canadian Celanese, up 1/2, Bell Telephone up 1/4 and Imperial Oil, ahead 1/2.

Among losers were Algoma Steel, Texaco, Toronto-Dominion Bank and Steel Company of Canada, all off in a 1/2 to one-point range.

U.S. markets were closed today in observance of Washington's birthday anniversary.

AT TORONTO International Nickel led base metals lower with a drop of 1 1/2. Norelco fell 1/2 and Falconbridge 3/4. Among speculatives, Lake Duport dropped 10 cents to $5.60 and Northgate added 25 cents to $5.30.

Western oils saw Calgary and Edmonton gain 1/2, while Dome fell 1/2 and Home A 1/4.

AT MONTREAL stocks remained mixed in moderate trading on the stock exchange today.

Trans-Canada fund gained 1/2 to 9 1/2 in heavy trading to feature the industrial section.

AT LONDON a stock market was quiet and irregular today. Price movements were mostly small.

Shipping shares were depressed. Hoover shares declined. Steels gained a little ground but engineering were mixed.

Tobacco shares made rallies and chain stores held firm. Oils and dollar stocks were dull while mining issues moved narrowly in quiet dealings.

'FACTSMANSHIP' NEEDED

Liberal Taunts Arouse Bennett

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane Wednesday fought an hour-long battle of words with Premier Bennett in which he nearly was ejected from the legislature and which completely shattered brotherly love and apathetic debate.

Mr. Macfarlane demonstrated how effectively, more so than any other MLA, he can needle the premier, and push the needle under his skin.

He berated the premier (who lives in Oak Bay) on a number of counts:

Purchase of Black Ball ferries; the Peace River project; secret government; debt.

He called him: "a master of double talk"; a showman; arrogant.

He asked him to show some "factsmanship" for a change.

He nearly got thrown out of the legislature for accusing Education Minister Leslie Peterson of saying "half truths" about debt.

The premier immediately jumped up (he took about 10 such jumps during the speech) to demand the remark be withdrawn.

Speaker Hugh Shantz agreed.

"I will not; I will complete my remarks which will explain it," said Mr. Macfarlane.

Speaker Adamant

Mr. Shantz insisted.

"Under order of the House only," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"He's showing complete disrespect for the Speaker," cried the premier.

"I might as well be muzzled," complained Mr. Macfarlane.

"Mr. Speaker, he's suggesting he's being muzzled," the premier said.

Mr. Shantz got tough.

"The honorable member has come so close to being named in this House," he said. "He has been disrespectful to the chair. I will not tolerate it."

If the Speaker "names" a member he is automatically ejected from the legislature.

It hasn't happened since 1955 when the victim was North Vancouver—Liberal Gordon Gibson, although Mr. Shantz threatened two CCFers last year.

'No Disrespect'

Mr. Macfarlane finally bowed.

"No disrespect—not the slightest bit—was meant to you," he told the Speaker. "I was answering the premier across the floor of the House."

"Weaselling," said Premier Bennett.

Tony Gargrave (NDP-CCF Mackenzie) sprang to the defence.

POWER BATTLE ROCKS TURKEY

Navy Silent After Search

The RCN Pacific Command destroyer escort HMCS Skeena returned to Esquimalt at 8 a.m. today after attempting to check out a report of an unidentified submarine spotted by a B.C. Airlines pilot off Nootka Island, on the west coast of Vancouver Island Tuesday.

The pilot, Axel Duch, said in Vancouver he is convinced the object he sighted was a submarine.

The navy has made no announcement on the result of its search, in which aircraft and a frigate assisted the Skeena.

Duch reported he saw a bluish-grey submarine conning tower, about 40 feet long and camouflaged with brown stripes, while he was on a flight between Port Alberni and Zeballos.

"I saw a submarine," he said. "I'm positive of that. I was trained in submarine spotting as a pilot with the Danish Air Force. I've seen dozens of them from the air."

He said the object he saw was pointed at either end and had stabilizers on both sides of the two points.

The navy search turned up several bluish-grey objects floating in the area, including one about 50 feet long.

Officers of the U.S. Navy submarine Charr, which is visiting Vancouver, said Mr. Duch's description fits at least two classes of Russian submarines, which have cruising ranges of 16,000 and 26,000 miles.

Skeena was joined in the search by the frigate HMCS Antigonish, which was on exercises off the coast. Antigonish also returned at 8 a.m. today.

Aircraft from 402 Maritime Patrol Squadron based at Comox, and navy planes from VU33 Squadron, Patricia Bay, also took part.

Soviet Seeks Pledge

On A-Tests

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union said today it is willing to discuss the nuclear test-ban issue in the forthcoming 18-nation disarmament talks, but only on the basis of a previously rejected proposal.

Soviet negotiator Semyon Tsarapkin made the announcement in an informal meeting with the United States deputy delegate, David Mark, and Britain's Derek Brinson.

He said the Soviet government continues to stand on its Nov. 28 proposal for a big power test-ban pledge which allows no international control.

That proposal was formally rejected by the Western side before the nuclear talks were broken off last month.

'Invaders Training in Panama'

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today the United States is training Cuban invasion forces in jungle camps in the Panama Canal Zone.

It was one of the most specifically documented of the Fidel Castro regime's long string of claims that a new invasion is in the making. Almost a year has passed since the unsuccessful invasion of last April 17.

The radio said other training camps are located in a Panamanian province on the Pacific coast, identified as Los Santos, and claimed a submarine base is in the same area.

Germany Talks Backed

BONN (AP)—West Germany agreed today in replying to a Soviet memorandum suggesting bilateral negotiations on Berlin and Germany—that an improvement in relations between the two countries should be sought through a step-by-step method.

But the Bonn government's answering memorandum, delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Hans Kroll, insisted relations never could be fully normal until the Soviet Union allows East and West Germany to be reunified through free elections.

The 22-page answer said West Germany is willing to investigate every possibility of removing differences with the Soviet Union "in view of the fatal consequences in which a thoughtless and rash step in the present critical situation might involve not only our two peoples but the whole world."

The government here pledged that anything undertaken would be in close agreement with its Western allies.

The Soviet memorandum of Dec. 27 made a plea for a new understanding between what it called "the two greatest countries of Europe" and proposed bilateral negotiations to this end on the Berlin and German problems.

Negro Children Routed By Rhodesian Police Dogs

SALISBURY (AP)—South-ern Rhodesian police used dogs on leashes today to help disperse a crowd of 200 Negro school children who marched into the centre of Salisbury to demand an interview with the minister of native education.

The march was the latest incident in a series of complaints by Negro children that they were unable to get places in local schools. Negro organizations claim many children were accepted in schools for the beginning of the school year recently but then were told there was no room for them.

The result has been a number of demonstrations by school children, which have been curbed by police. Police have been stationed by the children on several occasions.

In today's demonstration the youngsters got to the minister's office and police arrived in riot wagons with dogs. Officers told the children some of them could go into the building to see the minister but they refused to split up.

Officers then ordered them to disperse and they began to move away. A police spokesman said later one child was arrested for obstructing the police

IN BERLIN

Renewed pledge of U.S. determination to stand by isolated city of West Berlin was made today by Attorney-General Robert Kennedy in speech at city hall of divided city. Kennedy, near end of month-long world tour, was cheered by thousands of West Berliners.

Army, Air Force In Struggle

ANKARA (AP)—Turkish air and ground force units struggled in Ankara and other Turkish centres tonight over support of Premier Ismet Inonu's coalition government.

No casualties were immediately reported as air force units and army ground troops tried to take over control of key centres.

The air force, supporting the government, flew continual jet sorties over Ankara and controlled air fields in the capital and in Istanbul. The air force also controlled radio Istanbul.

Ground forces controlled Ankara radio and Inonu was cut off the air as he addressed to the nation an appeal for internal peace after a tense day of political crisis.

The radio station was surrounded by army troops and tanks following serious disagreements between army factions on whether or not the Inonu government should be terminated and a new coup d'etat staged in Turkey.

Earlier, tanks and troops surrounded principal buildings as military criticism of the government mounted.

The presidential palace, the war college, the post office and the national assembly building were among centres guarded by troops during urgent meetings of Inonu and commanders of the nation's armed forces proceeded.

Young officers have shown dissatisfaction over lack of progress on land, tax, agricultural and education reform measures.

The critical young officers took part in the military ouster of executed premier Adnan Menderes in 1960. They helped draw up the plans for reforms during 17 months of military rule before general elections were held in October.

Montreal Bank Bandits Grab $30,000

MONTREAL (CP)—Four armed men robbed a north-end branch of the Royal Bank of Canada of an estimated $30,000 today. The men escaped in a stolen car. It was found abandoned two blocks from the scene.

Liquid Gas Plant Blast Injures 12

MONTREAL (CP)—At least 12 persons were injured, two seriously, late today in an explosion at a liquid-gas manufacturing factory in east-end Montreal.

Twins, 3, Sister Perish In Fire

CHICAGO (AP)—Twin three-year-old girls and their three-month-old sister perished today in an apartment house fire on the South Side. Their mother led her four other children to safety.

B.C. Boy Curlers Win Another

HALIFAX (CP)—Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia won eighth-round games this afternoon to continue domination of the Canadian schoolboy curling championship. British Columbia trounced Northern Ontario 10-4.

After seven an' a half years o' fightin' they might as well declare war in Algiers an' have it.

Thet submarine wuz prob'ly left over from th' submarine races o' th' silent centennial.

In th' House yestiddy, Mister Bennett seems t' hev got a little hot under th' choiler.

Speaker Roland Michener ordered him to withdraw references to malignancy, and he did.

Mr. Fisher also said that from the beginning of last year until the new party founding convention, which opened July 31, Mr.

Argue's travel expenses had amounted to about $5,000.

"That figure is completely inaccurate and false," said Mr. Argue, jumping up from his new seat in the Commons between the Liberal and Conservative benches.

Turkeys can run at large and mink are classified as domestic animals under legislation introduced Wednesday by Agriculture Minister Frank Richter.

He introduced amendments to the Animals Act to the legislature.

Among them was inclusion of fur-bearing animals raised on farms as domestic animals along with horses, geese and cows.

Mr. Richter said that fur-farming in B.C. is now worth

He also introduced amendments to the Plant Protection Act allowing licensing of individual members of chain stores to sell nursery stock. Under the present law if one member violates a regulation, the whole chain loses its licence. The amendments also boost the maximum fine for violations from $50 to $100.

Amendments to the Rules of the House of Representatives, also from Mr. Richter, allow the cabinet to define lawful fences, at present listed in detail. He said this was because of many new types of fencing material now used.
